Foreword

The ASEAN Comprehensive Investment Agreement (ACIA) came into effect on 29 March 2012 to support a free, open, transparent and integrated investment regime in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) region in line with the goal of achieving an ASEAN Economic Community by 2015. This Guidebook aims to assist potential businesses and investors, both domestic and foreign, as well as those who already have their operations in ASEAN by providing an understanding of the ACIA and what it means to their investments.

The ASEAN Economic Ministers (AEM), taking into consideration of current and future needs for a comprehensive and robust investment environment in ASEAN, strategised for the ACIA to be forward looking by taking into account the changing global business and economic landscape. The ACIA is also intended to shore up the sustainability of ASEAN towards its economic integration agenda under the ASEAN Economic Community (AEC) in 2015 and beyond.

With the ACIA, which is a legal document and promises to provide multiple benefits to ASEAN investors under its four (4) pillars of Investment: Liberalisation, Protection, Promotion and Facilitation now in place, we need to ensure the businesses and investors have a good understanding of the ACIA for them to take full advantage of the provisions of the ACIA. This Guidebook aims to do just that.

The ACIA Guidebook explains the provisions of the ACIA and highlights how this would be beneficial to investors and their investments. Created for Businesses and Investors, it aims to help investors, businesses, executives, entrepreneurs, and professionals —domiciled both inside and outside of ASEAN — to have a better understanding of ACIA.

We are optimistic the ACIA will help to surge growth and development dividends to support the ASEAN Economic Community through increased intra and extra investment flows. It is our ardent hope that this Guidebook on ACIA will further enhance and assist in creating ASEAN, for both domestic and global businesses and investors, as a preferred investment destination.

INTRODUCTION TO THE ACIA GUIDEBOOK

The ASEAN Comprehensive Investment Agreement (ACIA): A Guidebook for Businesses and Investors has been prepared to help investors, businesses, executives, entrepreneurs, and professionals both inside and outside the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) to learn about ACIA. The Guidebook highlights the most salient provisions of ACIA from a doing business perspective, and the way in which ACIA improves on earlier ASEAN investment instruments. It also shed lights the potential benefits and opportunities for business created by ACIA.

The Guidebook is divided into seven parts as follows:

- Part A: Background to ACIA and its Scope of Application;
- Part B: Benefits of ACIA for ASEAN Investors;
- Part C: Liberalisation and Forward Looking Characteristics of ACIA;
- Part D: Non-Discrimination Provisions in ACIA;
- Part E: Protections for ASEAN Investors in ACIA;
- Part F: Investor-State Dispute Settlement Mechanisms; and
- Part G: Conclusion.

The text of ACIA is attached as Annex A to the Guidebook.¹

PART A: BACKGROUND TO ACIA

INTRODUCTION TO ACIA

ACIA is an ASEAN Agreement which took effect on 29 March 2012. ACIA is applicable to measures adopted or maintained by an ASEAN Member State in relation to:

- a. investors of a different ASEAN Member State and
- b. any investments, in its territory, of an investor of a different ASEAN Member State which have existed as of 29 March 2012 or after.

Article 1 of ACIA states that, ACIA's main objective is to create a free and open investment regime in ASEAN "in order to achieve the end goal of economic integration under the ASEAN Economic Community (AEC) in accordance with the AEC Blueprint." Article 1 emphasises the four pillars of ACIA:

ACIA's aim is to create "a liberal, facilitative, transparent and competitive investment environment in ASEAN." This is to be achieved by adhering to the certain principles such as:

- a. Providing for investment liberalisation, protection, promotion and facilitation;
- b. Benefiting the investors and their investments based in ASEAN (hereinafter referred to as "ASEAN Investors") ;

- c. Maintaining and according preferential treatment among ASEAN Member States; and
- d. Preserving (or “no back-tracking”) of commitments made under the Framework Agreement on the ASEAN Investment Area (AIA Agreement) and the ASEAN Investment Guarantee Agreement (ASEAN IGA).

The region’s rise as a significant source of outward FDI, both within and beyond the ASEAN region, and the concomitant need to offer a higher overall level of protection to ASEAN’s growing number of multinational investors and their investments, constitute an important rationale behind the advent of ACIA. The ASEAN region has seen a burgeoning of home-grown transnational enterprises over the past two decades, with significantly scaled up cross-border merger and acquisition activity in all key sectors of the world economy.

The comprehensive set of investment norms embedded in ACIA provides ASEAN Member States with an important set of good governance instruments with which to enhance domestic investment climates and promote the regional grouping’s attractiveness to foreign investors.

ACIA’S PREDECESSORS

ASEAN decided to adopt ACIA as a means to improve on the two earlier ASEAN-wide investment frameworks, namely the ASEAN IGA and the AIA Agreement.

The ASEAN IGA was designed as an investment guarantee agreement among signatory ASEAN Member States and centred on the protection and promotion of investments. The AIA Agreement, for its part, established a more liberal and transparent investment climate among the ASEAN Member States in order to increase the FDI inflows from both ASEAN and non-ASEAN sources into ASEAN.

ACIA pursues and deepens the approach taken in both the ASEAN IGA and the AIA Agreement. ACIA also improves on the ASEAN IGA and the AIA Agreement by:

- a. Adopting international best practices in granting protection to ASEAN Investors and their investments in another ASEAN Member State;
- b. Embedding recent trends in international investment rule making in advocating less restrictive investment regime ;

- c. Introducing innovations such as a broader definition of investors and investments, as well as the inclusion of portfolio investment and intellectual property;
- d. Providing an opportunity for third country nationals to benefit from ACIA;
- e. Promoting a higher level of transparency in investment rule-making;
- f. Affording greater protection to ASEAN Investors and their investments; and
- g. Adopting the Investor-State Dispute Settlement mechanisms (ISDS) and promoting alternative routes to dispute resolution such as the use of arbitration centres in ASEAN Member States.

INVESTORS AND INVESTMENTS

In order to benefit from ACIA, an investment must be within the definition of “investment” under Article 4 of ACIA; and the investment must be a “covered investment” as defined in ACIA.

INVESTOR

An ASEAN Investor can be either a natural or a juridical person. A natural person must be a national, citizen, or permanent resident of an ASEAN Member State. A juridical person can be any legal entity constituted under the law of an ASEAN Member State.

ACIA extends protection to investors from outside ASEAN. Such an investor may become an ASEAN Investor by setting up a juridical entity in any one of the ASEAN Member States (the ASEAN Juridical Person), from which it can then make an investment in another ASEAN Member State. The third-country national or legal entity must own or control (i.e. have power to name a majority of its directors or legally direct the actions of) the ASEAN Juridical Person. The latter must also carry out substantive business operations in the ASEAN Member State where it was first established.

INVESTMENTS

ACIA provides protection for ASEAN Investors and their investments in another ASEAN Member State which existed as of 29 March 2012 (the date of ACIA's entry into force) or established, acquired or expanded thereafter, and admitted according to the laws, regulations and national policies of the host ASEAN Member States. These investments are termed as "covered investments" under the ACIA.

Investment includes every kind of asset, owned and controlled by an investor (Art.4).

Including:	Examples:
Movable and immovable property and property rights.	Machinery, factory building, leases, liens, mortgages, charges.
Shares, stocks, bonds, and debentures.	Shares, bonds held in a company or corporation.
Intellectual property rights and goodwill.	Patents, registered trademarks, geographical indications, trade secrets, industrial designs, copyrights.

Including:	Examples:
Claims to money or to any contractual performance related to a business.	Profit sharing agreement, partnership agreement.
Rights under contracts, including turnkey, construction, management, production or revenue-sharing contracts.	Turnkey construction agreement, project management, production sharing agreement
Business concessions required to conduct economic activities and having financial value conferred by law or under a contract, including any concessions to search, cultivate, extract or exploit natural resources.	Expressway build operate and transfer concession including the rights to collect toll, mining contract.

TABLE 1: DEFINITION OF INVESTMENT

PART B: BENEFITS FOR ASEAN INVESTORS

ACIA, which adopts international best practices and follows the latest trends in international investment rule making, offers many potential benefits to ASEAN Investors including:

LIBERALISATION

ACIA promotes the progressive liberalisation of investment in ASEAN, beginning with 5 sectors and the services incidental thereto namely:

This means that ASEAN Investors will have the opportunity to invest in all the liberalised sectors and expand the markets for their products and services in all ASEAN Member States.

NON-DISCRIMINATION

By adopting the principles of National Treatment and Most-Favoured-Nation treatment, ASEAN Member States also agree not to treat ASEAN Investors less favourably than either local or foreign competitors (or like businesses).

At the same time, ACIA allows ASEAN Investors to select senior management, irrespective of their nationalities, to manage their investments in ASEAN.

ACIA also prohibits ASEAN Member States from imposing any performance requirement, such as a production quota or export target, on any ASEAN Investors and their investments.

TRANSPARENCY

Investors under ACIA can expect more transparent, consistent and predictable investment rules, regulations, policies and procedures including:

- a. Harmonised investment policies which may lead to investment policy convergence;
- b. Streamlined and simplified procedures for investment applications and approvals; and
- c. Dissemination of information on rules, regulations, policies and procedures affecting investors and their investments within ASEAN.

PROTECTIONS FOR ASEAN INVESTORS

ACIA offers comprehensive protection to ASEAN Investors and their investments. ACIA provides, among others, the following:

INVESTOR–STATE DISPUTE SETTLEMENT MECHANISM

In the event of any conflict with host Governments, ASEAN Investors are given the option of resolving the disputes through alternative dispute settlement mechanisms or referring the dispute to domestic courts or to binding international arbitration:

PART C: INVESTMENT LIBERALISATION AND FORWARD LOOKING NATURE

As mentioned earlier, ASEAN Member States undertake to liberalise cross-border investment in 5 main sectors and to investment in services incidental to them.

Liberalised Sectors	Subsectors	Examples/illustrations
Main Sectors	Manufacturing	Manufacture of food or textiles
	Agriculture	Growing of crops, animal farming
	Fishery	Fishing, fish hatcheries, fish farms
	Forestry	Sawmill, timber extraction
	Mining and quarrying	Extraction of crude petroleum and coal mining
Services incidental to the main sectors	Services incidental to manufacturing	Outsourcing of production
	Services incidental to agriculture	Services providing agricultural machinery with drivers and crew
	Services incidental to fishery	Operational services of fish hatcheries or fish farms
	Services incidental to forestry.	Timber evaluation, forest management
	Services incidental to mining and quarrying.	Drilling services, repair and dismantling services

TABLE 2: LIBERALISED SECTORS IN ACIA

Pursuant to Article 9 of ACIA, each ASEAN Member State has submitted a list of reservations which provides for the non-conforming measures and regulations maintained in the 5 main sectors (and the incidental services) subject to ACIA, therefore providing more transparency to investors on host country investment regimes. As an expression of the forward-looking nature of ACIA, ASEAN Member States further commit to progressively clarify and reduce or eliminate their reservations in the future based on the Strategic Schedule of the AEC Blueprint.¹ ASEAN Investors can thus expect more transparent, consistent and predictable investment rules, regulations, policies and procedures.

The Schedule of reservations is based on a single reservation list² which provides ASEAN Member States with policy space in the liberalisation of investment in the said 5 sectors. This also means that all other part of the 5 said sectors not in the single reservation list are, subject to national policy, liberalised and open to ASEAN Investors.

ACIA also commits ASEAN Member States to enhance cooperation in a number of areas including:

- a. Investment policy convergence;
- b. Procedures for investment applications and approvals;
- c. Information exchange on investment related, rules, regulations, policies and procedures;
- d. Enhanced coordination among government ministries and agencies; and
- e. Higher level of consultation with private sector stakeholders to facilitate investment.

Transparency is an important element of ACIA. “Improvement of transparency and predictability of investment rules, regulations and procedures conducive to increased investment among Member States” is one of the factors to achieve a free and open investment regime in ASEAN as outlined by Article 1 of ACIA. Hence, transparency is reflected in many ACIA’s provisions such as the requirement to notify 1 ASEAN may undertake to liberalise other investment sectors as may be agreed upon. Further, ASEAN is working on a mechanism for the implementation of progressive liberalisation.

2 The single reservation list is a negative list and is based on the UN Classification: ISIC Rev.3. (International Standard Industrial Classification of All Economic Activities, Rev.3) <http://unstats.un.org/unsd/cr/registry/regcst.asp?cl=2> and Provisional Central Product Classification (CPC) 881-885 (for the incidental services).

other ASEAN Member States when an ASEAN Member State imposes a restriction on transfer of funds; the requirement to notify the AIA Council of the introduction of any new law or of any changes to existing laws, regulations or administrative guidelines, which significantly affect investments or commitments of an ASEAN Member State; and the requirement to make publicly available, all relevant laws, regulations and administrative guidelines of general application that pertain to, or affect investments. These requirements are the manifestation that ACIA is rules-based and promotes predictable investment rules.

Furthermore, in order to promote ASEAN as a single destination for investment, ASEAN Member States agree through ACIA to:

- a. Create the necessary environment to promote all forms of investment and new growth areas in ASEAN;
- b. Promote intra-ASEAN investment, particularly investments from ASEAN-6 (Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand) in the newer ASEAN Member States;
- c. Nurture the growth and development of Small and Medium Enterprises;
- d. Promote joint investment initiatives focusing on regional clusters and production networks.

PART D: NON-DISCRIMINATION

EQUALITY IN TREATMENT

In general, ASEAN Investors and their investments are not to be discriminated against in any ASEAN Member State where they conduct business.¹ Such equality of treatment is rooted in the National Treatment (Article 5) and Most-Favoured-Nation Treatment (Article 6) obligations of ACIA. Both standards of treatment are applicable in the pre-establishment and the post-establishment stages of an investment.

National Treatment (Article 5)
An investor from ASEAN Member State A in ASEAN Member State B shall be treated in the same way as local investors.
Most Favoured Nation (Article 6)
ASEAN Investors should be treated no less favourable than each other or an investor from a third country who is not a member of ASEAN.

TABLE 3: NATIONAL TREATMENT AND MOST-FAVOURED-NATION TREATMENT

FREEDOM TO APPOINT SENIOR MANAGEMENT AND BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Under Article 8 of ACIA, an ASEAN Member State is not allowed to impose any specific nationality requirement on senior management unless the ASEAN Member State has made a reservation in its Schedule for such a measure. Nevertheless, an ASEAN Member State may require that a majority of the board of directors of a foreign company established in its territory be of a particular nationality, or to be resident in its territory. However, this requirement shall not impair the ability of the investor to control its investment.

¹ Under Article 9 of ACIA, the provisions on non-discrimination under Articles 5 (National Treatment) and 8 (Senior Management and Board of Directors) of ACIA does not apply to any existing measures maintained by an ASEAN Member State at the central, regional or local government levels as provided under the Schedule. National Treatment and Most-Favoured-Nation treatment shall not apply to exception or derogation under Articles 3 and 4 of the Agreement of the Trade Related Intellectual Property Rights of the WTO (TRIPs).

FREEDOM TO OPERATE INVESTMENT

Under ACIA, ASEAN Investors are free to operate their investment. ASEAN Member States are not allowed to impose any conditions on the investments, such as by way of minimum local contents, export requirement or trade balancing requirement.²

² ACIA incorporates by reference the WTO Agreement on Trade-Related Investment Measures (TRIMs).

PART E: PROTECTIONS FOR INVESTORS AND INVESTMENTS

INTRODUCTION

ACIA affords the following protections to investors and their investments:

ENSURING FAIRNESS

Under Article 11 of ACIA, ASEAN Member States have agreed to extend fair and equitable treatment to covered investments of ASEAN Investors States. This means that:

- a. The host ASEAN Member State will, when exercising its power, make decisions according to its laws and regulations. The host country is not allowed to make arbitrary decisions; and
- b. In the event that any legal action, civil or criminal, is taken by the ASEAN Member State against an investor, the investor shall have the right to defend itself, including through access to legal representatives such as lawyers. The investor will also be given the right to appeal any adverse decisions or outcomes.

ENSURING SECURITY

Article 11 of ACIA provides that a host ASEAN Member State will have to provide full protection and security to an ASEAN Investor's investment. Such protection must be granted at all times, including during riots or insurgence which may occur in the territory of that ASEAN Member State.

For example, if a riot broke out in ASEAN Member State A and rioters suddenly attacked the manufacturing facility of an investor from ASEAN Member B, ACIA would oblige the Government of ASEAN Member State A to take necessary measures to protect the facility.

COMPENSATING IN CASES OF STRIFE

In the event of any losses suffered by an investment as a result of armed conflict, strife, or similar events, an ASEAN Member State is required under Article 12 of ACIA to compensate the ASEAN Investors that are affected by such an incident. Such compensation or restitution must be made on a non-discriminatory basis.

Compensation in the Cases of Strife (Art. 12)
Example: A plantation owned by an investor from ASEAN Member State B suffered losses as a result of an armed conflict between the government forces of ASEAN Member State A and an insurgent group. The ASEAN Investor from ASEAN Member State B may seek compensation.

TABLE 4: COMPENSATION IN THE EVENT OF STRIFE

PREVENTING UNLAWFUL EXPROPRIATION

ACIA protects investors against unlawful expropriation. Under Article 14 of ACIA, an ASEAN Member State that expropriates, either directly or indirectly, an investment is required to provide proper compensation to the affected investors. A host ASEAN Member State may only expropriate or nationalise directly or indirectly (referred to in the ACIA as “measures equivalent to expropriation or nationalisation”) if it meets the following criteria:

- a. The expropriation or nationalisation is undertaken for public purposes;
- b. The expropriation or nationalisation is done in a non-discriminatory manner;
- c. Affected investors provided with prompt, adequate and effective compensation; and in accordance with due process of law.

Direct Expropriation
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Formal transfer of legal title • Outright seizure of the investment of the foreign investors Example: ASEAN Member State A takes over the plantation company of an investor from ASEAN Member State B in ASEAN Member State A without compensation. This amounts to an unlawful expropriation.
Indirect Expropriation
A measure or series of measures that has a similar effect to direct expropriation even without formal transfer or outright seizure of an investment. This is decided on a case-by-case basis. Factors in deciding whether such a measure amounts to indirect expropriation include: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. adverse effect on the economic value of an investment; b. breach of the Government's prior binding written commitment to the investor; and c. lack of proportionality between the measure and the public purpose for which it is implemented. Public purpose includes public health, safety, and protection of the environment. Example: A refusal to renew an operating licence without a valid reason. Such a refusal could amount to indirect expropriation. If however, 1) the refusal is made for a public purpose, for example, in regard to mitigating the risk of an environmental hazard; 2) in a proportionate manner; and 3) the Government did not originally provide any specific commitment to the investor that it would definitely renew the licence, the refusal to renew such a licence may not be deemed an indirect expropriation.

TABLE 5: UNLAWFUL EXPROPRIATION

Under Article 14 (2) of ACIA, compensation for any expropriation or nationalisation must be paid without delay and meet the following criteria:

- a. Payment must be equivalent to the fair market value of the expropriated investment immediately before or at the time when the expropriation was publicly announced or occurred;
- b. Must not reflect any change in value because the intended expropriation had become known earlier; and
- c. Is fully realisable and freely transferable between ASEAN Member States.

There are a few exceptions to the general rule against expropriation. These include:

- a. The right of host ASEAN Member States to acquire land subject to the investment provided such expropriation and the payment of the compensation meets the requirements of domestic laws; and
- b. The right of host ASEAN Member States to impose a compulsory licence for intellectual property according to the domestic intellectual property law, such as in the case of compulsory licences for drugs used in the treatment of immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS) under national intellectual property law.

ALLOWING FOR FREEDOM TO TRANSFER FUNDS

Freedom to manage capital and funds is essential for any business operation. Article 13 of ACIA guarantees that every ASEAN Investor may freely and without delay conduct transfers relating to its investments into and out of the territory of the ASEAN Member State where its investment is located. Such transfers can be made in a freely usable currency i.e. the currency that is widely used to make payments for international transactions and widely traded in leading foreign exchange markets, at the market rate of exchange at the time of transfer.

Freedom to Transfer Funds (Art.13)
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Contribution to capital;• Profits, capital gains, dividends, royalties, licence fees or any other fees, interest, or other income from an investment;• Proceeds from the total or partial sale or liquidation of an investment;

Freedom to Transfer Funds (Art.13)

- Payments under a contract, including a loan agreement;
- Payments of compensation in cases of strife or lawful expropriation;
- Payments relating to settlement of an investment dispute, and
- Earnings or other remuneration of personnel employed and allowed to work in relation to an investment in the territory of a host ASEAN Member State.
- Transfers can be made in a freely usable currency at the market rate of exchange at the time of transfer.

TABLE 6: TRANSFER OF FUNDS

In exceptional cases, a host ASEAN Member State may prevent or delay transfer of funds through equitable, non-discriminatory and good faith application of its laws and regulations, with regard to:

- bankruptcy, insolvency or the protection of the rights of creditors;
- trading in securities, futures, options or derivatives;
- criminal or penal offences and the recovery of proceeds of crime;
- financial reporting or record keeping of transfers when necessary to assist law enforcement or financial regulatory authority;
- ensuring compliance with orders or judgements in judicial or administrative proceedings;
- taxation;
- social security, retirement , or compulsory saving schemes; and
- severance for employees, and formalities imposed by the Central Bank or other relevant authorities of that ASEAN Member State.

Article 13 (4) ACIA provides that an ASEAN Member State may impose restrictions on any capital transactions as a temporary measure on a non-discriminatory basis, in the following circumstances:

- at the request of the International Monetary Fund (IMF);
- where the measure is taken to safeguard the balance of payments (under Article 16 ACIA); or
- in exceptional circumstances where capital movement causes or threatens to cause serious economic or financial disturbance in the ASEAN Member State concerned.

PROTECTING INSURERS' RIGHT TO RECOVER

Article 15 of ACIA stipulates that, if an insurer has covered the losses suffered by an investor in a host state, then the host state will recognise the subrogated right of the insurer to bring the investor's claim. Thus, the insurer will become a direct beneficiary of any compensation from the host state to which the investor would have been entitled. However, before exercising subrogated rights or claims, the insurer shall disclose the coverage of the claims arrangement with its investor to the host state.

PROMOTING FREEDOM FOR THE ENTRY OF KEY PERSONNEL

Article 22 of ACIA specifically guarantees that ASEAN Member States shall grant entry, temporary stay and work authorisation for investors, executives, managers and members of the board of directors of an ASEAN Investor, for the purpose of establishing, developing, administering or advising on the operation of the investment in its territory. Nevertheless, granting such authorisation will be subject to the immigration and labour laws, regulations and national policies, and commitments under the ASEAN Framework Agreement on Trade in Services (AFAS), of each ASEAN Member State.

EXCEPTIONS UNDER ACIA

Under ACIA, ASEAN Member States may introduce and maintain measures that meet certain national or domestic policy goals such as protection of the environment, health, security and personal data protection. The measures must not be discriminatory or arbitrary and must not be disguised restriction on investors or their investments.

In order to prevent the ripple effects of balance-of-payments difficulties, Article 16 of ACIA allows an ASEAN Member State to impose a restriction on freedom to transfer funds. Nevertheless, in order to prevent any arbitrary measure of the state relative thereto, ACIA requires ASEAN Member States to comply with certain criteria, namely:

- it is consistent with the Articles of Agreement of the IMF;¹
- it avoids unnecessary damage to the commercial, economic and financial interests of another ASEAN Member State;
- it does not exceed those necessary to deal with the circumstances;
- it is temporary and is phased out progressively as the situation improves; and
- it is applied non-discriminatorily.

Example:

During the Asian Financial Crisis in 1997, there had been capital flights that had a catastrophic impact on several Asian countries. They had to adjust their monetary policies, and it still took several years for them to recover. With this provision, an ASEAN Member State may be able to impose measures to control outflow of capital.

DENIAL OF BENEFITS

Under Article 19 of ACIA, the host ASEAN Member State may deny any benefits conferred by ACIA in the event that an investor or an investment:

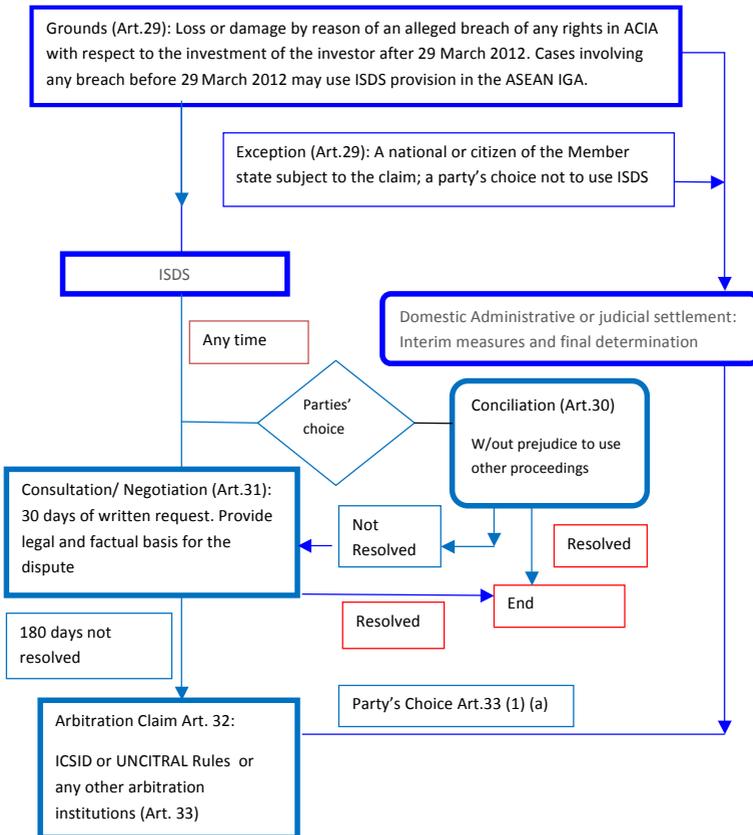

- a. does not conduct substantive business operations in the ASEAN Member State where it is incorporated.
- b. is from a country without any diplomatic relations with the host ASEAN Member State.
- c. has breached its domestic law by misrepresenting its ownership in those areas which are reserved for local investors.

¹ In general, the Articles of Agreement of the IMF establishes the IMF and explains the obligations of Member States.

PART F: ACCESS TO DISPUTE SETTLEMENT MECHANISMS

ASEAN Investors under ACIA may benefit from access to the ISDS mechanism, which is applicable to claims for losses and damages after the Agreement's entry into force. The process of an action under ISDS is depicted shown in the flow chart below:

CAUSES OF ACTION

The disputing investor has to show that it has incurred a loss or damage by reason of or arising out of the breach of the host ASEAN Member State of its obligations under ACIA. An ASEAN Investor may file an action under the ISDS based on any of the following causes:

Claim for breach by the host ASEAN Member State of:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• National Treatment• Most-Favoured-Nation Treatment• Senior Management and Board of Directors• Treatment of Investment• Compensation in Cases of Strife• Transfers• Expropriation and Compensation relating to the management, conduct, operation or sale or other disposition of a covered investment.

TABLE 7: CAUSES OF ACTION UNDER THE ISDS

FORUMS

ASEAN Investors also have access, in each case, the domestic courts of the host country or various forms of international arbitration as shown in the Figure above.

ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION MECHANISMS

Although ACIA provides for the resolution of investment disputes through either local courts or international arbitration, it also encourages prompt management of conflicts through efficient techniques such as conciliation and mediation.

Conciliation, which may run concurrently with arbitration may begin and be terminated at the request of the investors at any time.

Consultations and negotiations may be utilised by the disputing parties prior to seeking arbitration. Consultation and negotiations shall be initiated by a written request by the disputing investor to the disputing host ASEAN Member State. A disputing investor shall make all reasonable efforts to provide the disputing Member State, prior to the commencement of consultations, with information regarding the legal and factual basis for the investment dispute.

RECOURSE TO INVESTOR STATE DISPUTE SETTLEMENT

Under Article 32, if an investment dispute has not been resolved within 180 days of receipt by a disputing Member State of a request for consultations, the disputing investor may submit a claim under the ISDS mechanism, either to the domestic court or arbitration.

If arbitration is seen to be the preferred dispute resolution procedure, however, the investor is required to waive in writing of its right to initiate or continue any domestic court proceedings.

The one exception to this is that an investor will not be prevented from initiating or continuing an action that seeks interim measures of protection for the sole purpose of preserving the disputing investor's rights and interests and does not involve the payment of damages or resolution of the substance of the matter under dispute.

STATE TO STATE DISPUTE SETTLEMENT

In the event that ASEAN Member States disagree about the interpretation of ACIA on matters other than disputes about a State's investment-related measure causing damage or loss to a foreign investor, ACIA incorporates the existing ASEAN State-to-State dispute settlement mechanism under the ASEAN Protocol on Enhanced Dispute Settlement Mechanism signed in Vientiane, Lao People's Democratic Republic on 29 November 2004.

PART G: CONCLUSION

ACIA promises to provide multiple benefits to ASEAN investors under its four (4) pillars of Investment Liberalisation, Protection, Promotion and Facilitation. ASEAN Member States value the growth and development dividends that can flow from increased economic integration. There is a consensus, reflected in ACIA, that cross-border investment has a positive role to play in all ten ASEAN Member States and that investors should be encouraged to maintain and expand their investments throughout the region. This is the background to ACIA and goes a long way towards explaining why it offers potentially significant advantages to ASEAN investors doing business across the region.

ACIA facilitates the progressive liberalisation of investment in 5 main sectors: manufacturing, agriculture, fishery, forestry, mining, and related services. In other words, the liberalisation of investment under ACIA comprehensively considers primary, secondary, and tertiary sectors. ASEAN investors further benefit from the forward-looking provisions of ACIA, including in regard to transparency disciplines and the promotion of ASEAN as an integrated investment destination.

In liberalised sectors, ACIA commits ASEAN Member States to treat ASEAN Investors and investments in a non-discriminatory manner with regard to the national treatment and most-favoured-nation treatment principles. Limitations on the nationality of senior management and boards of directors are also minimised under ACIA.

In addition, ACIA offers a series of guarantees to ASEAN investors that host country investment regulation will be fair and non-discriminatory. ACIA offers wider coverage than previous investment instruments within ASEAN. The substantive protection and guarantees offered under the agreement are clearer than those found in previous ASEAN investment instruments.

ACIA responds to the concerns of foreign businesses over the potentially capricious nature of host country regulatory change and seeks to provide rights of recourse that are efficient, transparent and legally binding. The collective commitment of ASEAN Member States to a rules-based system of dispute settlement is a significant improvement over the previous approach where business people had to rely on diplomatic protection from their home country governments. The provision of Investor-State Dispute Settlement depoliticises potential conflicts between individual investors and host states, allowing the former to prosecute alleged treaty breaches and defend their property rights without soliciting the support of their Governments.

The ISDS mechanism offered by ACIA includes mediation, conciliation, and international arbitration. Of these, arbitration is likely the most relevant in addressing major investment disputes and is accordingly the subject of some of ACIA's most detailed rules.

Article 17

General Exceptions

1. Subject to the requirement that such measures are not applied in a manner which would constitute a means of arbitrary or unjustifiable discrimination between Member States or their investors where like conditions prevail, or a disguised restriction on investors of any other Member State and their investments, nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to prevent the adoption or enforcement by any Member State of measures:

- 2. Following notification to the Member State of the investor, and without prejudice to paragraph 1, a Member State may deny the benefits of this Agreement to investors of another Member State and to investments of that investor, where it establishes that such investor has made an investment in breach of the domestic laws of the denying Member State by misrepresenting its ownership in those areas of investment which are reserved for natural or juridical persons of the denying Member State.

A disputing Member State may also file an objection that a claim is otherwise outside the jurisdiction or competence of the tribunal. The disputing Member State shall specify as precisely as possible the basis for the objection.

3. The tribunal shall address any such objection as a preliminary question apart from the merits of the claim. The disputing parties shall be given a reasonable opportunity to present their views and observations to the tribunal. If the tribunal decides that the claim is manifestly without merit, or is otherwise not within the jurisdiction or competence of the tribunal, it shall render an award to that effect.

4. The tribunal may, if warranted, award the prevailing party reasonable costs and fees incurred in submitting or opposing the objection. In determining whether such an award is warranted, the tribunal shall consider whether either the claim or the objection was frivolous or manifestly without merit, and shall provide the disputing parties a reasonable opportunity to comment.

The non-disputing Member State shall be entitled, at its cost, to receive from the disputing Member State a copy of the notice of arbitration, no later than 30 days after the date that such document has been delivered to the disputing Member State. The disputing Member State shall notify all other Member States of the receipt of the notice of arbitration within 30 days thereof.

Article 40 Governing Law

Subject to paragraphs 2 and 3, when a claim is submitted under Article 33 (Submission of a Claim), the tribunal shall decide the issues in dispute in accordance with this Agreement, any other applicable agreements between the Member States, and the applicable rules of international law and where applicable, any relevant domestic law of the disputing Member State.

2. The tribunal shall, on its own account or at the request of a disputing party, request a joint interpretation of any provision of this Agreement that is in issue in a dispute. The Member States shall submit in writing any joint decision declaring their interpretation to the tribunal within 60 days of the delivery of the request. Without prejudice to paragraph 3, if the Member States fail to issue such a decision within 60 days, any interpretation submitted by a Member State shall be forwarded to the disputing parties and the tribunal, which shall decide the issue on its own account.

3. A joint decision of the Member States, declaring their interpretation of a provision of this Agreement shall be binding on a tribunal, and any decision or award issued by a tribunal must be consistent with that joint decision.

- (d) in the case an application is denied, inform the applicant in writing of the reasons for such denial. The applicant shall have the opportunity of submitting, at that applicant's discretion, a new application.

ANNEX 2

Expropriation and Compensation

1. An action or a series of related actions by a Member State cannot constitute an expropriation unless it interferes with a tangible or intangible property right or property interest in a covered investment.
 2. Article 14(1) addresses two situations:
 - (a) the first situation is where an investment is nationalised or otherwise directly expropriated through formal transfer of title or outright seizure; and
 - (b) the second situation is where an action or series of related actions by a Member State has an effect equivalent to direct expropriation without formal transfer of title or outright seizure.
 3. The determination of whether an action or series of actions by a Member State, in a specific fact situation, constitutes an expropriation of the type referred to in subparagraph 2(b), requires a case-by-case, fact-based inquiry that considers, among other factors:
 - (a) the economic impact of the government action, although the fact that an action or series of actions by a Member State has an adverse effect on the economic value of an investment, standing alone, does not establish that such an expropriation has occurred;
 - (b) whether the government action breaches the government's prior binding written commitment to the investor whether by contract, licence or other legal document; and

- (c) the character of the government action, including, its objective and whether the action is disproportionate to the public purpose referred to in Article 14(1).

4. Non-discriminatory measures of a Member State that are designed and applied to protect legitimate public welfare objectives, such as public health, safety and the environment, do not constitute an expropriation of the type referred to in sub-paragraph 2(b).
