ABSTRACT

Indonesia is considered as one of the ASEAN countries that has well advanced Consumer Protection programs and initiatives. This report presents the outcomes of an assessment of the capacity building needs in Consumer Protection (CP) in Indonesia with specific focus on six selected consumer areas, contributing towards a regional framework. The research project addressed gaps in both human and institutional capacities related to specific needs for improved effectiveness and long-term sustainability in dealing with consumer issues and consumer protection areas. A general survey questionnaire was successfully completed by 11 out of 20 selectively identified stakeholders including government and regulatory agencies, business sectors and non-government organization, with relevant interests and work on consumer protection and issues. Further validation process was performed through Key Informant Interviews involving 15 key informants and further 16 participants at a roundtable discussion. The findings suggested that Indonesia needs further advancement in its CP program implementation. In particular, more Consumer Dispute Settlement Board and systemized database management are needed to enhance the effectiveness of its complaint handling or redress mechanisms. Inadequate laws and financial resources or funding were suggested as some areas of difficulties that need to be addressed, apart from inadequate human resources with appropriate experience or qualifications; inadequate training opportunities and facilities; and limited coordination among relevant agencies or organizations. This report highlights human and institutional capacity gaps and recommendations for CP agencies and organizations in Indonesia, through a proposed national roadmap and best practices in consumer protection program.

Keywords: Consumer protection, capacity building, complaints, redress mechanisms, best practices, Indonesia.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Indonesia, a member of ASEAN and WTO, is the largest Muslim nation in the world and one of the fastest growing economies in Asia with an average GDP growth rate of 5.1% per annum that is supported by a resilient domestic demand and economic reforms. Due to the importance its large consumer base generating positive domestic demand for its economic growth, strategic consumer protection agenda has been well established in the country since 1999, along the line with its market liberalization agenda. However in order to further develop consumer protection in Indonesia to the next level, specific capacity building programs for relevant stakeholders would help to provide consumers with better protection, not only nationally but also at the ASEAN level.

In general, in order to enhance consumer protection in Indonesia, the stakeholders have to overcome five major difficulties:

- Inadequate laws
- Lack of skilled staff in consumer protection
- Inadequate number of staff
- Inadequate finances
- Access to training

The Directorate of Consumer Empowerment requires capacity building assistance to

- review and amend the Consumer Protection Law in relation to decentralization of the establishment and management of the Consumer Dispute Settlement Body (CDSB) per year to be equipped with basic office, as well as qualified and experienced staff
- support the establishment of an average four CDSB per year to achieve around 400 CDSBs for serve the entire population
- support the development of non-government organizations to provide complementary effort to enhance consumer protection

The National Consumer Protection Agency (NCPA) requires capacity building assistance to

- Conduct policy study and review on the Consumer Protection with regards to some provisions related to goods and services, and the definition of “consumers”.
- Explore and learn from other best practices in consumer protection programs and models
- Strengthen program implementation capacity with relevant ministries in relation to recommendations that have been approved by the President.

More specific capacity building needs are suggested by the other stakeholders, such as assistance for the following objectives:

- Enhancing capacity to advocate for women’s rights as consumers (cosmetics, medical services)

- Improving access (location) for healthcare
- Developing program to certify the qualifications of health service providers (individuals, midwives) to women
- Training on consumer areas from suggested best practices such as:
 - Financial and Consumer credit (Australian CP Competition Agency, Australian Prudential Regulation Authority-APRA)
 - Nature of standardized contracts
 - product Safety (LPG-standards)

Concerns of consumers, as well human and institutional challenges related to product safety and labelling, phone & internet and E-commerce, consumer credit and banking, environment, healthcare services and professional services are also highlighted in this report. This report also presents prioritization areas for overall consumer protection enhancement plan and focus areas for capacity building for Indonesia and its relevant stakeholders.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1. STUDY BACKGROUND

This country report, which complements a Regional Report, is part of the research titled 'Roadmapping Capacity Building in Consumer Protection in ASEAN'. It is a project of the ASEAN Australia Development Cooperation Program Phase II (AADCP II), which aims to strengthen consumer protection in the region as well as in individual ASEAN Member States (AMSs). The major output of this research is a regional capacity building roadmap on consumer protection and supporting roadmaps for each of the AMSs. The roadmaps were based on the following information that were gathered and presented in this report:

- a mapping of consumer protection policies, laws and regulations in AMSs
- consumer education programs, initiatives and best practices
- capacity building needs of major stakeholders in consumer protection and recommendations

The overarching framework of the study is primarily based on the UN Guidelines on Consumer Protection (1985), which has been further espoused and reiterated by Consumers International into 8 fundamental rights as follows:

1. The right to basic needs
2. The right to safety
3. The right to information
4. The right to choose
5. The right to representation
6. The right to redress
7. The right to consumer education
8. The right to a healthy environment

The following key principles are also adhered to in the development of the national road map, contributing towards the regional framework:

- Protection: Consumers should be protected from unfair practices
- Responsibility: Transparent legislation in addition to effective consumer programs to enable consumers to have sufficient information in order for them to exercise their responsibilities
- Enforcement: There should be prompt and efficient enforcement of legislation to deter breaches of the consumer protection laws by businesses
- Change: new and emerging consumer issues are identified so that legislation is updated and consumers have access to relevant information on these issues in order to make informed choices.
- Competition: free and open competition is generally beneficial for consumers and Government regulations and legislation help to ensure a fair environment in the marketplace for consumers and businesses
- Representation: Legitimacy for representation by non-governmental consumer organizations must be recognized such as the right to association

Consumers International Kuala Lumpur (CIKL) Office carried out the study in cooperation with its members in the AMSs and partners, or appointed local focal points. In Indonesia, Yayasan Lembaga Konsumen Indonesia (YLKI) was appointed as the local focal point for the study.

CI is a not-for profit federation of consumer groups that serves as the only independent and authoritative global voice for consumers. Founded in 1960 and with over 220 member organisations in 115 countries, it is building a powerful international movement to help protect and empower consumers everywhere. The KL office is CI's regional office for Asia Pacific and the Middle East.

Organization of Report

This report is organized into 6 Chapters. Chapter 1 provides general background on Indonesia and a general state of consumer protection in the country. Chapter 2 outlines the methods applied for data gathering that led to the outcomes and findings presented in this report. Findings of the project are presented in Chapters 3, 4 and 5. The general mapping and situational analysis on national legislation and consumer protection programs are presented in Chapter 3. Chapter 4 covers the assessment on the capacity building needs of the various stakeholders that took part in the project, and Chapter 5 presents some recommendations and the national Roadmap for capacity building needs in consumer protection at the national level. Finally, Chapter 6 draws an overall conclusion of the report.

1.2. COUNTRY BACKGROUND

Indonesia is multi-ethnic country with many languages and cultures, wide regional differences and fast changing political and economic circumstances. Almost 90% of Indonesians are Muslim, observing halal dietary laws. Demographically, modern lifestyles have been adopted comfortably by the urban consumers as well as cross the country. Indonesia, with a population of 242,968,342 (July 2010 est.)¹, is the world's fourth biggest nation and is a rich market. In 2008, Indonesia' Human Development Index was reported at 71.17, with Consumer Price Index and Inflation at 123.29 and 0.06, respectively in October 2010.² Indonesia's GDP (Purchasing Power Parity) in 2009 was reported at $962.5 billion, with per capita GDP of $4,000. Indonesia's economy is basically driven by 3 major sectors, namely industry 47.6%, services 37.1% and agriculture: 15.3%.

Indonesia is an archipelago country with a total of 17 000 islands, of which 6 000 are inhabited. Java Island, the most advanced and developed district, has 59% of Indonesia's population and a further 21% live on Sumatra. Bali accounts for just 1.5% of the total population. Due to its geography, Indonesia has its own unique management challenges in relation to information access, which can be expensive and difficult to distribute requiring much efforts and resources.

1.3 CONSUMER PROTECTION IN INDONESIA

1.3.1 General Overview

The spending power of Indonesian consumers has been growing steadily over the past years. Consumer confidence on the economy has increased. In the capital city of Jakarta, it estimated that about 10 million people (1.2% of the population) belong to the affluent segment of consumers, having an average monthly household expenditure of US$1,700 (15 million Rupiah).³ In general, based on income distribution, the population of Indonesia consists of three social economic classes⁴:

- 40 % of population with lowest income
- 40 % of population with moderate income
- 20 % of population with highest income

The Gini Index in Indonesia indicates that income inequality has reduced in gap. In 2006, Gini Index was reported at 39.4, and this had reduced to 37.58 in 2008.⁵

Retailing is a major industry that is strategically important to consumers in Indonesia. Apart from providing consumers direct access to products, it is also the second largest industry after agricultural industry in terms of employment absorption in Indonesia. As presented in Table 1.1, in 2009, consumers in Indonesia had almost an equal amount of spending on food and non-food items which are key items made available to consumers by the retailing industry.

Due to the robust consumption and spending trends in the country, together with its open economy, consumer protection has been an important element in the society. Thus, guarantee on the rights and obligations of consumer and entrepreneurs have been legally established through the Law of Republic of Indonesia No. 8 Year 1999 concerning consumer protection. In addition, trade security and consumer protection is also well integrated in the Indonesian

⁶ Food includes alcoholic beverages and tobacco

⁷ Non-food includes housing and household facility, goods and services, clothing, footwear, and headgear, durable goods, Taxes and insurance, parties and ceremony

National Development Agenda Year 2004-2009⁸. According to the Research conducted in 2004 (6,873,294 households in the Metropolitan City of Jakarta), 60.4% of Indonesia's metropolitan consumers were well aware of their rights and obligations.⁹

Consumer protection is placed and developed under the Ministry of Trade and Industry (MTI), whose role includes:

- Develop and publish rules and regulation related to the Law of the Republic of Indonesia No. 8 (1999) on Consumer Protection;
- Facilitate the establishment of National Consumer Protection Agency (NCPA) and Consumer Dispute Settlement Body (CDSB);
- Provide guidance in the development of consumer organizations
- Empower consumers and suppliers through education and awareness on their rights and obligation;
- Increase access to consumer redress by facilitating the establishment of consumer's complaint unit;
- Handle individual complaints and disputes;
- Collect and disseminate information through media and other interactive activities;

The Directorate of Consumer Empowerment¹⁰ under the Ministry of Trade and Industry is primarily responsible for consumer protection in Indonesia. The Directorate comprises of four specific Sub-Directorates, which are:

1. Sub-directorate of Cooperation, Information and Publication
2. Sub-directorate of Analysis of Consumer Protection Implementation
3. Sub-directorate of Consumers and Business Guidance
4. Sub-directorate of Institutional Facilitation

Like other countries, consumers in Indonesia are also faced with a number of issues with regards to products and services. For the year 2009, Yayasan Lembaga Konsumen Indonesia (YLKI) reported that the five main complaints related to goods or products were

- Housing
- Electronics (such as audio visual equipments, mobile phones, computers, etc.)
- Household appliances
- Automotive
- Food

In terms of services, the main consumer complaints received in 2009 were related to:

⁸ Ministry of Trade (SEA Conference on Consumer Protection)

⁹ Ministry of Trade and Industry

¹⁰ Was formerly known as the Directorate of Consumer Protection, and renamed since September 2010. The change is also made in relation to the upgraded profile of the Directorate in the Organization Chart of the Ministry. http://www.depdag.go.id/bagan_organisasi/

- Banking
- Telecommunication
- Supply of water and electricity
- Insurance
- Transportation

Rural consumers in Indonesia are also confronted with some other issues, apart from the above, including:

- Access to clean water
- Waste management

As consumer protection is considered as one of the key areas in social development, there are many civil society organizations (CSOs) and government agencies adopt the protection of consumer rights as one of their functions (covered in Chapter 5). However, due to poor coordination and centralisation of complaints data and statistics, limited inferences and interpretation could be made from the relatively small number of complaints, which may not be well representing all sectors, products and services. The website of the Directorate of Consumer Protection¹¹, for example, listed some un-updated information since 2005 that showed Banking/Finance/ Cooperating Services having the most number of complaints (27 complaints) followed by Insurance Service (7) and Lottery (3) in 2005.

1.3.2 Product Safety and Labelling

Product safety is a challenging area where consumers in Indonesia can be effectively protected due to the large traditional market scene in country. As mentioned earlier, retailing is an important industry in Indonesia, which is mainly characterized by two main groups: the modern retailers (such as supermarkets and malls) and the traditional retailers (mainly stalls, peddlers, or individually owned small family businesses). Currently, there are various issues affecting safety of consumers. In particular, there is a special need to improve traditional retailers in terms of safety, security and health conditions of goods or food produced, where incidentally, food poisoning contributed to the most common type of consumer injuries,¹² which may be due to the limited awareness on clean, hygienic, and sanitary product or food preparation of the daily needed products by traditional market operators. Other challenges related to product safety and labelling are related to:

- Hazardous chemicals and/or heavy metals in products such as cosmetics
- Chemicals substances in traditional medicines
- Absence or lack of regulation in product labelling and standards conformity on other consumer products such as toys.
- Counterfeit/fake products (such as credit cards, medicines and other consumer goods, particular branded goods)

¹¹ Website: <http://pkditjenpdn.depdag.go.id/English/index.php?page=aduanbrw>

¹² Reported by YLKI

The National Agency of Drug and Food Control (NA-DFC)¹³ or locally known as Badan POM, is the authority for regulating, monitoring, standardization and certification of food and drugs in Indonesia. Public Warnings and Press Release, including Queuing List on Drug registration and registered products, are shared on its website. Apart from NA-DFC, the National Standardization Agency of Indonesia (BSN), which is a non-ministerial government institution, is responsible for the matters pertaining to standardization, including the development and promotion of other product safety standards in Indonesia. Pertaining to product safety and labelling, there are many national standards known as SNI (Indonesian National Standard) related to product safety and labelling that have been made mandatory including standards for some products such as:¹⁴

- Motorcycle Helmets;
- LPG Gas equipment¹⁵
- Food labelling
- Refined sugar
- Glass plates
- Fertilizers

SNI also helps in the efforts to curtail entry of products banned elsewhere or substandard products into the national markets. In addition, Technical Regulations have also been applied to 69 consumer products. Labelling of products currently only applies to contents and weight, and has not included prices. Codes of Conduct, is also not commonly promoted amongst the producers, manufacturers or service providers.

1.3.3 Phone & Internet Services and E-Commerce

In 2008, there were around 30 million internet users in Indonesia, with 30.378 million (2008) have access to telephones (land lines) and 140.578 million mobile phones.¹⁶ Mobile phones accounted for around 25% of consumer electronics spending in 2009. Indonesia's market handset sales are expected to grow at an average growth rate of 13% to 26.3mn units in 2014, as mobile subscriber penetration reaches 144%. On the other hand, computer hardware accounted for around 41% of Indonesia's consumer electronics spending in 2009, whereby home users would account for a growing share of demand, rising to above 60% by 2014.¹⁷

With the progression on deregulation measures in Indonesia's telecommunications policy as reflected in its commitments under the WTO Agreement on Basic Telecommunications (Rajan & Sen, 2002), there are currently forty six Internet Provider Service (ISP) licenses. About 35 ISPs are in operation, which provides consumers with greater options and more choices of services and providers to choose from. To further encourage healthy development of the Information Communication Technology (ICT) sector, Indonesia also established the Information and Network Nusantara 21, which reflects Indonesia's vision of entering information era as an important part of the global community.

The main bodies involved in regulating phone and Internet services, and e-commerce in Indonesia are the Indonesian Telecommunications Regulatory Authority and the Ministry of Communications and Information Technology. Coordination among these two ICT regulatory authorities, national consumer protection authority and consumer organizations also exists through the formation of specific Task Force which is mainly issue-based, such as the Task Force on Advertisements Monitoring and the Task Force on Monitoring Telecommunication services.

Common consumer complaints associated with phone & internet services, and E-commerce in Indonesia includes:

- Premium SMSs¹⁸
- Misleading advertising
- Slow internet access (not as advertised/promoted)
- Undisclosed (auto) credit deductions
- Absence of Codes of Conduct for Telecommunication providers

1.3.4 Consumer Credit and Banking

The recent rise in consumer credit and non-performing loans related to credit cards and other forms of personal credits or loans amongst consumers worldwide, including in Indonesia, has been a disturbing trend for consumer organizations, governments and financial institutions to look into. Even though Indonesia is still mostly a cash-driven society, credit card transactions have been reported to grow steadily by around 45% in 2008 from 2007. According to the Indonesian Credit Card Issuer Association, Indonesia's total credit card transactions as of December 2009 reached about Rp 131 trillion with about 11.5 million cards circulating, indicating an increase of 23% from 2008.¹⁹ Non-performing loans (NPL) related to credit card sector had an average NPL ratio around 9% in 2009, compared to an average of 3.31% across the broader banking sector.

Apart from credit cards and banks, consumers in Indonesia also seek credits or loans from other sources such as credit without collaterals offered by non-bank financial institutions, loans from unlicensed money lenders and pawnshops.

¹⁸ refers to contents and advice services, usually sent by and sent to a fix 4-6 digit specialized service numbers (for example announcement of sales offers, entertainment, information and news updates, personal services such health, love advice, etc.); also see (<http://www.apecdoc.org/post/1/1390>)

¹⁹ "HSBC targeting 25 percent growth in credit card business 09 Jun 2010" The Jakarta Post (Ekonomi) <http://bataviase.co.id/node/244206>

Despite being a fast developing consumer market, with the potential for greater consumer purchasing power, there are only a small number of CSOs that do any work related to consumer credit (hire purchase, loans, and other sources of credit). As such, there is limited knowledge and awareness regarding any laws or provision or measures that regulate activities on hire purchase, loans and credit card, money lending or pawn broking with regards to:

- Limitation on interest rates charged by lending institutions to consumers
- Means or standards to notify or inform consumers the basis for fees and charges imposed
- Means or codes of conduct for debt collection agencies of the banks to recover loans
- safeguards on personal data protection
- prohibition on false and misleading advertisements on consumer credit and banking

Despite the increasing trend in consumer debts, there is also no known form of financial debt counselling agency to provide support to consumers in addressing financial difficulties or debts. Nonetheless, there are other forms of consumer education programs that have been carried out to help address the concern over increasing consumer debts.

Ministry of Finance (MoF) and Bank Indonesia (BI) are the primary authorities in banking and finance in the country. The Banking Mediation Bureau, which is part of BI, is the available mechanism for consumers to seek redress. Some of the challenges related to consumer credits include:

- Lack of knowledge on risk of banking product
- Unfair contract
- Debt collector
- Information disclosure from the bank
- Hidden charges
- ATM /credit card fraud and counterfeit

Visa International and MasterCard listed Indonesia as the second worst countries in the world for credit card fraud occurrence by total incidents recorded.²⁰ Most cases of counterfeit fraud involve skimming, a process where the genuine data on a card's magnetic stripe is electronically copied onto another, without the legitimate cardholder's knowledge, or fraudulently obtaining card details to make a purchase, over the telephone or over the Internet. Recently, however, Bank Indonesia has stepped up its campaign to have full migration to EMV chip to enhance security protection against counterfeit cards and fraud.

1.3.5 Environment

The interest in the environment and sustainability appears to be on the rise in markets all across the world. Environmental issues related to products disposal or waste is one problem that is related to consumers. This calls for products and services to be produced and consumed in a sustainable manner. Materials used for packaging relate directly and indirectly to consumer demand patterns and contribute to waste generations and environmental degradation. Consumers in Indonesia are also aware of the implications of products that they buy on the environment. Thus, pressure for producers to supply responsible and sustainable products has also increased. Lately, it has been observed that organic food has also increased in demand in the country.²¹

²⁰ Michael Linnitt <http://www.expatriate.or.id/info/creditcardfraudinindonesia.html>

Apart from clean environmental surrounding, air quality is also important for the enjoyment of safe and healthy life of consumers. Like many other countries, Indonesia has taken positive step to manage the issues surrounding air pollution and haze.²² Climate change is an issue that is also close to Indonesia's agenda. The management of Indonesia's rich natural resources and forest has been under scrutiny by various parties due to some misaligned policies.^{23 24} As a dynamic developing nation, Indonesia has increased efforts to protect and enhance its environmental quality. To date, Indonesia has signed various multilateral agreements such as:

- Convention on Biological Diversity, 1992
- Cartagena Protocol on Bio-safety, 2003
- United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change Protocol, Kyoto, 1997
- Montreal Protocol on substances that deplete the Ozone, 1987
- Stockholm Convention on Persistent Organic Pollutants, 2001
- Basel Convention on the Control of Transboundary Movement of Hazardous Wastes, 1989
- ASEAN Agreement on Transboundary Haze Pollution (2002)

WHO report also suggests that Indonesians are increasingly being exposed to health risks from environmental hazards.²⁵ Air pollution and massive air contamination of ground and surface water resources by industries and households are common have been highlighted as major issues that affect consumers. It was also stated that potentially harmful chemicals are readily available to the public and used in agriculture, industry and commerce. Haze from the forest fires in Indonesia has had significant disruptive social and economic domestically, and has posed some concerns from neighbouring countries.

1.3.6 Health and Healthcare services

There are 33 provinces and each province is sub-divided into districts and each district into sub-districts. As decentralization had been already implemented, the 399 districts and 98 municipalities are now the key of administrative units. Figure 1.1 presents a schematic diagram on the health care system of Indonesia. Basically, each sub-district in Indonesia has at least one health centre headed by a doctor, usually supported by two or three sub-centres, the majority of which are headed by nurses. At the village level, the integrated Family Health Post (Puskesmas), which is established and managed by the community with the assistance of health centre staff, provides preventive and promotive services. To improve maternal and child health, midwives are being deployed to the villages. Currently, there are around 1,500 public and private hospitals (more than 600 are private), 7,621 small public health centres (Puskesmas), 29,499 physicians, and 135,705 nurses throughout the nation's 33 provinces. Out of the 7,621 health centres, about 4,000 offer dental care.²⁶ Community and preventative health programs formed another component of Indonesia's health system. Providing access to medicines is also one of the key responsibilities of the government. During the 1997-98 crises, the Indonesian Ministry of Health took an effective and focused action to ensure the availability and affordability of generic essential drugs in private pharmacies and to ensure generic drug were supplied to health centres.²⁷

Hospital beds, however, were unequally distributed throughout Indonesia, with the better equipped urban hospitals tended to have more physicians and higher central government spending per bed than did hospitals in the rural areas.

The creation of “Healthy Indonesia 2010” by the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare forges collaborative goals:

- To initiate and lead a health orientation of the national development
- To maintain and enhance individual, family, and public health along with improving the environment
- To maintain and enhance quality, accessible, and affordable health services
- To promote public self-reliance in achieving government health

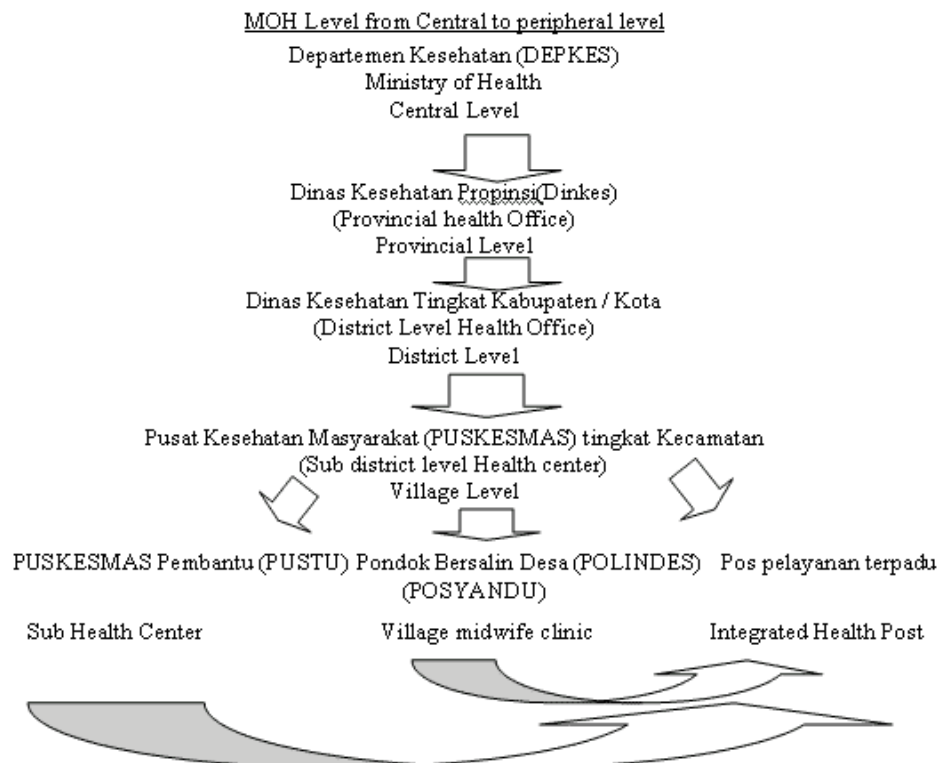

The Decentralization Policy has been implemented in Indonesia, through the implementation of Law No. 22/1999 regarding Regional Governance and Law No. 25/1999 regarding the financial equality between Central and Regional government. The Policy brought about changes from a Centralized to a Decentralized type of government, which provides regional autonomy to provide healthcare within the region.

To improve quality of healthcare in the country, National Health Information Systems (NHIS) reforms have been indicated by the development of a NHIS policy and strategy that was included in the Ministry of Health Decree No. 468/MENKES-KESOS/SK/V/2001, dated 25 May 2001, which has then been amended by Decree No. 511/MENKES/SK/V/2002, dated 24 May 2002. The Government of the Republic of Indonesia also established a coordinating body, called BAKORNAS at central level, and SATKORLAK at provincial level to response to both natural and man-made disasters (for Emergency Response and Preparedness).

Most common consumer complaints received related to healthcare services for 2009 as reported by YLKI²⁹ were:

On Government Hospitals

- Access to health care for poor people
- Bad services
- Discriminative to those who use government health insurance³⁰ - hospitals tend to give less priority or poor treatment to those seeking healthcare using this health insurance due to the inferior socio-economic or stigma associated with the insurance scheme, compared to those who have private insurance or with credible cash payment status.

On Private Hospitals

- Tariff
- Use of unnecessary supporting health equipment

1.3.7 Professional services

In Indonesia, according to YLKI³¹ three types of professional services are often sought by consumers

- Medical Profession
- Notary for housing and land
- Legal

However, in this study the discussion on professional services acquired by consumers is limited to the two most commonly sought after in the ASEAN region, namely medical and legal professional services.

1.3.7.1 Medical Professionals

Apart from access to medical and dental services, CP also provides means against possible incidence of professional negligence, malpractice or unethical practices. In forming a Doctor-Patient relationship, it is necessary for both consumers and doctors to know about their duties and obligations, understanding Doctor-Patient contract and understanding Professional Negligence.³² Apart from negligence, consumers, in general, view that doctors have general duties to provide them with relevant information when they seek treatment such as:

- The necessity of the treatment.
- Other alternative modalities of a treatment.
- Risks of pursuing the treatment, including inherent complications of drugs, investigations, procedure, surgery
- Duration of the treatment.
- Prognosis of patient's condition (no exaggeration or minimize the gravity of the situation).
- Expenses, fees and break down of charges.

The advances in e-health as another form of delivery of healthcare services would also have an impact on consumers' rights and access to medical care. As today's consumers become more empowered through the sharing of knowledge and information on the internet, consumers have indirectly become partners in their own health and take advantage of online processes, health portals, and doctor's or physician's web pages and e-mails.³³ The new breed of internet-savvy consumers would expect more integrity and ethics to boost this new form of doctor-patient relationship, through increased efficiency, reliability and accuracy, as well as strengthened communication between doctors and patients.

³³ Marion J. Ball and Jennifer Lillis. (2001). E-health: Transforming the Physician/Patient Relationship. The International Journal of Medical Informatics 61 (1): 1-10.

Duties and obligations of doctors are declared in a number of national laws and international declarations and codes of ethics such as:

- Declaration of Geneva (Physician's Oath)³⁴
- Declaration of Helsinki - Ethical Principles for Medical Research Involving Human Subjects³⁵
- International Code of Medical Ethics³⁶

There are also various legal instruments and programs that have already been put in place to ensure ethical practices, including those related to advertising by doctors in Indonesia (also see Section 3.1.7.1). It is also noted that Indonesia places certain restrictions to limit the practice of foreign doctors. In Indonesia, foreign medical and allied health specialists can be legally registered only as consultants and are not allowed to practice permanently in Indonesia.³⁷

General issues experienced by consumers with regards to professional services include:

1. Doctor may give wrong diagnosis, also not carrying out procedure properly
2. Fraud or dishonest practice
3. Breaches of confidentiality or trust
4. Does not provide full explanation before any course of actions

Challenges in general may include :

- Strengthening the capacity of disciplinary board
- Propose means to notify consumers of blacklisted or unlicensed practitioners
- Train sufficient local doctors

1.3.7.2 Legal Professionals

A consumer is likely, at some point, to render the services of a lawyer or an advocate. It is quite common for consumers, in general, to use the services of lawyers or advocates in writing wills or detailed estate plans, or assisting in filing the legal forms required to create a business.

Consumers may also render the services of lawyers or advocates in court on family matters, such as divorce or custody issues, or defence in cases they are accused of a crime or being sued.³⁸

For consumers or clients, lawyers or advocates have a duty to advise and help them understand the legal system. In doing so, consumers see that lawyers work to protect their legal rights as clients, help them solve legal problems, defend and guard them, as clients, against abuses of potential rights violators.

Thus, it is seen that the services of legal professionals have a relatively direct importance for and implications on consumers. Legal professional services are particularly sought by consumers to represent their interests in the court-based system. The advancement in cross-border transactions may further necessitate consumers to render professional services in cross-border legal representation in the era of globalization.

Before rendering legal professional services of a lawyer or an advocate, consumers are generally concerned about a number of factors such as:

- Background, qualifications and experience
- Disciplinary history
- Legal requirements for practicing law to govern their professional conducts
- Service fees (hourly, flat fee, on retainer, or contingent fee)
- Professional liability

In general, consumers also expect their hired lawyers or advocates to

- work hard to represent them
- apply good judgment and remain neutral as to not having any conflicts of interests
- perform according to their desired lawful goals
- respect the confidentiality of information provided or shared
- charge reasonable fee
- provide updates of their cases or positions
- be fair, respectful and unbiased regardless of their background (race, age, gender, national origin, or disability)

In Indonesia, “advocate” is the common term for a legal professional having a standing to represent the general public, or clients, or consumers. Similar to many other countries, Indonesia has a national Law on Advocates that governs their duties, rights, and privileges, and that also sets out the Code of Ethics of Indonesian Advocates applicable to those legal practitioners admitted under the Law³⁹ (see also Section 3.1.7.2).

A disciplinary committee or board also exists to examine and evaluate the performance of ethical conduct of an advocate. Currently, there are two well known advocate associations in Indonesia. The Indonesian Advocates Association (or PERADI – Perhimpunan Advokat Indonesia) and the Congress of Indonesian Advocates (or KAI – Kongress Advokat Indonesia) is mainly formed by some previous members of PERADI⁴⁰. Currently, however, there is an on-going court case involving these two associations over the claim on the right to grant practicing certificates to advocates in the country.⁴¹

⁴¹ The Supreme Court Chief Justice, Harifin A. Tumpa, issued SK KMA No. 089 year 2010 to state the Supreme Court position on the issue.

PERADI was established by eight previous advocate organizations. In its 2007 Annual Report, PERADI⁴² states that it organizes examination for advocates and issues practicing license, and those foreign advocates who plan to work in Indonesia may also seek recommendations from the Association.

Foreign lawyers are allowed to work or to be employed in Indonesian law firms,⁴³ whereby they have to be hired by an Indonesian firm and have to obtain a working visa from the Indonesian government. A recommendation from the authorized Advocate Association (such as PERADI) is also required. However, there are still some restrictions for foreign lawyers to practice law in Indonesia, such that they are only permitted to provide consulting services on foreign law, rather than Indonesian law. Additionally, foreign lawyers are not allowed to appear before any court, and they are not allowed to practice law and/or set up law firms or branches of their overseas law firms in Indonesia.

For the purpose of CP, however, it is important to note some concerns of consumers in relation to legal services. In other countries, for instance, some of disciplinary actions against the identified lawyers and firms include:⁴⁴

- “charging excessive fees and disbursements in connection with the preparation of a Sale and Purchase Agreement and a Loan Agreement.”
- “failing to act in the best interests of his client.”
- “acting in gross disregard of his client’s interests”
- “deceiving, committing breach of trust and acting mala-fide in relation to the preparation of loan documentation for his client”
- “failing to attend diligently to the work at hand despite repeated promises to the client.”
- “abusing his position as an advocate and solicitor in that he secured the execution of a charge by the Complainant by misrepresentation and deception”

There were, however, no official reports, cases, data, figures or statistics on any of the above incidences in Indonesia, found during the course of this Study.

2. METHODOLOGY

2.1 SCOPE

In developing the capacity building roadmap on consumer protection for ASEAN, this research covered two main areas of consumer protection. It looked at

- consumer protection laws in the country vis-à-vis enforcement, and
- the relevant agencies' capacity building needs in carrying out the relevant laws.

The study focused mainly on the aspects of consumer protection that been specifically identified by AADCP II as being of particular relevance to the ASEAN's goal of becoming a single market (Table 2.1). As such, it has been mutually agreed that in addition to the general consumer protection measures, six key consumer areas will be specifically addressed in the project. Table 2.1 describes the 6 areas that were covered in this study.

Table 2.1: Selected Key Consumer Areas and Issues of Focus.

Key consumer areas	Specific aspects to be covered
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Product safety and labelling 	: Consumer products including food and cosmetic products (excluding drugs and medicines)
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Phone & Internet services and E-commerce 	: Including broadband services, online purchase, rates and charges, access, quality of services.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Consumer Credit and Banking 	: Banking and financial institutions providing loans; money lending, hire purchase or other financial assistance to consumers.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Environment 	: Policies, laws and programs for safe and healthy environment, products or services related to water, energy and air
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Healthcare services 	: Public and private health care services, pharmaceuticals. Laws related to chargeable fees and accountability with
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Professional services 	: regards to legal and medical professions, consumer redress/ access

Across all consumer protection relevant laws, the study also examined these areas:

- Legal provisions that provide for consumer redress vis-à-vis the mechanisms already in place.
- Initiatives and best practices on consumer protection that are being implemented both by relevant government agencies, nongovernmental, and business organizations.

For the capacity building needs, the study covered the enforcement agencies that are principally in-charge of carrying out the provisions of the main Consumer Protection Law and of the six major areas as listed above. Particularly, the agencies' capacity to enact, enforce and implement relevant laws was studied. The capacity building needs of nongovernmental organisations and business groups in the country were also considered.

2.2 APPROACHES

The approach in carrying out the study was hinged on the review of the Formal Operating Context (FOC) vis-à-vis the Actual Operational Context (AOC) of consumer protection in the country. The analysis and findings from this exercise served as the basis in developing the recommendations for capacity building needs in consumer protection.

The FOC covered the assessment of

- The national consumer laws and regulations, including those that are being drafted or are awaiting enactment,
- National consumer protection programs and initiatives
- Key stakeholders' views and analysis

While in the AOC of consumer protection legislations and programs, the following activities were carried out:

- Evaluated how well laws and programs are actually implemented and enforced, and
- Review human and institutional capacities to draft and enforce consumer legislations and implement related programs.

Reviews of available records, databases, reports and documents related to consumer protection, including stakeholders' annual reports, were also performed. Soft and hard copies of laws, reports and publications were obtained where possible.

The mapping of laws and regulations in Indonesia was carried out by the focal points, YLKI, throughout the month of September 2010. The focal points were tasked to identify relevant local stakeholders for the General Survey, Key Informant Interviews and the roundtable discussion. YLKI also assisted in making all the necessary arrangements and schedule during the field visits from 18-23 October 2010. YLKI has a long and strong establishment in the areas of consumer protection in Indonesia, which enabled YLKI to compile information related to consumer complaints and consumer trends in the country.

The approach towards constructing the roadmap on the capacity building needs in consumer protection in Indonesia was also carried out through the fundamental understanding of the current the human and institutional gaps in implementing or carrying out consumer protection activities. Reviews of available records, databases, reports and documents related to consumer protection, including stakeholders' annual reports, were also performed. Soft and hard copies of laws, reports and publications were obtained where possible.

2.2.1 Capacity Building Needs Assessment on Consumer Protection

In order to achieve this objective, the study adopted an overall approach of the Formal and Actual Operating Contexts. The FOC involves legislation, policies and regulations that govern the responsibilities of the governments, businesses, consumers, and other stakeholder in the area of consumer protection. The FOC also includes the structures related to consumer protection. On the other hand, the AOC relates to the protection levels actually experienced by consumers, viewed from a rights-based perspective. The AOC includes governance and consumer welfare matters e.g. how enforcement mechanisms actually operate, the nature of consumer complaints/injuries and the nature of redress and compensation which consumers actually obtain.

The assessment of capacity building needs (CBN) constituted the following activities:

- System level: Reviewed the principal legislation and mapped other related laws covering consumer protection, institutional structures specifically for the purpose of consumer protection laws and policies that explicitly protect the rights of consumers such as Ombudsmen schemes, tribunals and industry based complaints handling systems. Private “structures” such as complaint cells in multi-national companies were not included as the motivation behind such structures is not always in the public interest.
- Organisational level: Identified gaps in institutional capacities such as roles and functions including monitoring and implementation of polices, laws and regulations, operation procedures, budget, number of staff, infrastructure, management and leadership,
- Individual level: Identified gaps in human capacities knowledge, experience, competencies, and skills.

The capacity building needs (CBN) were identified based on the existing gaps and deficiencies in the current (actual) operating context of consumer protection vis-à-vis a comprehensive protection regime at the System, Institutional and Individual levels. The gaps were then translated into the areas for capacity building that were recommended in order to attain the desired outcomes. The desired outcomes in implementing CP at the national level were benchmarked at the different states of needs and capacities for the different stakeholders and were tailored in order to harmonise CB strategies towards the desired outcomes at the regional level.

2.3 DATA COLLECTION PROCESS

The following research activities were implemented in carrying out the mapping of available records, database, reports and documents including annual reports:

- Desk research of consumer laws, programs, initiatives and reviews.
- A general survey of national laws, programs and implementation with national government stakeholders as well as about their issues and needs and expectations.
- Key informant interviews in relation to consumer protection implementation and about issues and gaps in national consumer laws and enforcement.
- Roundtable discussions with key stakeholders

The Study applied four data collection instruments to support and complement the accuracy and reliability of information gathered as follows:

- Instrument 1: Secondary Data Collection
- Instrument 2: General Survey Questionnaire
- Instrument 3: Key Informant Interview Questionnaire
- Instrument 4: Roundtable Discussion Program

2.3.1 Secondary Data Collection

Secondary Data Collection instrument was designed by CIKL with the main objective of generally mapping of consumer protection status in Indonesia. The data was collected by the Project focal point in Indonesia, Yayasan Lembaga Konsumen Indonesia (YLKI) throughout the month of October. Further processing and refinement were made for the purpose of this final report.

Secondary data related to capacity building needs and consumer protection-related matters from various agencies, ministries and organizations in all countries involved in the study were also gathered and reviewed. This includes Acts and laws; rules and regulations; codes of conduct, government policies and consumer protection programs.

The sources of information include annual reports from the relevant agencies and any report or study related to this study, including the preliminary findings of the study conducted by CI in 2009 entitled “The Asia Pacific Consumer Laws Analysis” where baseline information of consumer protection and competition laws in Asia Pacific have been established.

2.3.2 General Survey

The General Survey (GS) instrument was designed by CIKL where the questionnaire was structured to map information on consumer protection laws, regulations, policies, codes of conduct, consumer protection programs and initiatives; redress mechanisms; human and institutional gaps in the selected consumer protection areas, i.e. product safety and labelling, phone & internet services and E-commerce, consumer credit and banking, environmental issues, health care, and professional services. Other areas of interests expressed by the respondents will also be noted to be taken up for further deliberations during KII and RTD.

The GS was distributed locally by YLKI throughout the month of October 2010. Briefing for YLKI staff on the general objectives of the Project and the General Survey was done through phones, and also in YLKI's office in Jakarta on 8 September 2010. The stakeholders targeted for the general survey were identified by YLKI. (Please see Appendix 1 for List of Stakeholders).

2.3.3 Key Informant Interviews

In addition to the general questionnaire is the interview with Key Informants in each of the countries. The Key Informants are persons in senior positions within relevant organizations who are involved in policy making or enforcement or individuals who are acknowledged experts in the field. These individuals will be identified in consultation with members/contacts of CIKL, in the respective countries.

The Key Informant Interviews (KIIs) utilised open-ended questions to probe for more detailed information based on the findings from the general survey. This includes probing into recommendations and prioritisations as well as short, medium and long-term strategies and focus areas for capacity development on consumer protection for the relevant institutions nationally and regionally.

Key Informant Interviews were conducted at the respective stakeholders' offices from October 18-23, 2010. A total of 15 participants were interviewed for an average time of one hour per session. Most of the Key Informants are leaders of the respective organisations with key roles in strategic planning, operation, and leadership. (please see Appendix 2 for list of Key Informants).

2.3.4 Roundtable Discussion

The half-day Roundtable Discussion (RTD), which was the final step in information gathering was conducted on October 23, 2010 at Lumire Hotel, Jakarta was attended by 16 participants, was conducted primarily as a validation step, aiming at strengthening the validity and reliability of data and information collected. The participants invited were representatives of mid-level or junior-level government officials, ACCP members, program staffs of NGOs, academia, judicial or legal and business sectors.

The RTD was hosted by YLKI. Power-points presentation was used to share all relevant data from the Secondary Data, General Survey analyses and the Key Informant Interviews. The comments and feedback were consolidated throughout the 3 ½ hour process. (Please see Appendix 3 for RTD Programme)

2.4 DATA ANALYSIS

2.4.1 Secondary Data Analysis

The review and analysis of policies and laws entailed the identification of existing consumer protection related laws, the scope of the relevant Acts such as the areas or elements covered, how the Act is implemented and regulations enforced; and how consumers seek redress under the Act. In Indonesia, the principal Consumer Protection Act and the enforcement of this Act, along with the others were also examined through state actions or Ombudsmen schemes and through private action.

The analysis of the Principal Consumer Protection Law was carried out by mapping the provisions of the key consumer rights components applying CI's expert, John Wood's Matrix Model on "What Consumer Laws Should Do"⁴⁵. The process also involved reviewing of consumer protection regimes in other parts of the world where consumers enjoy a fairly higher degree of protection. Legal, structural, institutional and regulatory arrangements for consumer protection found in the European Union, Australia, United Kingdom and United States of America were examined with a view to establish a basis for a consumer protection regime that would be appropriate for the ASEAN region.

⁴⁵ Matrix developed by John T.D. Wood (1996).

In analysing the other aspects of data and information collected, it was necessary to take into account the socio-economic, cultural and political characteristics of Indonesia. By drawing upon examples of good practices from the more advanced consumer protection regimes and adopting or adapting them to the requirements of the country, key components of a comprehensive consumer protection regime were identified.

2.4.2 General Survey Analysis

Six types of analysis were performed on the data from the General Survey using the 17.0 version of Statistical Package of Social Sciences (SPSS) in order to identify priority areas for capacity building and gaps in consumer protection (Table 2.2).

Table 2.2: Types of Statistical Analysis Used

Type of Analysis	SPSS analysis
Normality test of the data	Kurtosis and skewness, P-P Plot
Reliability test of the data	Cronbach alpha
Organizational profile and consumer protection measures	Frequencies
Level of difficulty in implementing consumer protection programs and activities	Frequencies, Index
Capacity building needs and form of assistance required	Frequencies, Index
Relationship between level of difficulties and capacity building needs	Pearson correlation, T-Test

Qualitative information obtained from Key Informant Interviews and Key Informant Interviews was used to substantiate or supplement quantitative information obtained from the general survey. The open-ended Key Informant interviews and the Round Table Discussions served as a sounding board to fill in the gaps in formation, to check the validity and relevance of the capacity building needs of the AMSs.

Based on the findings from the General Survey, secondary data collection, key informant interviews and roundtable discussions at country levels, strategies and recommendations as well as a road map for strategic thrust areas for consumer protection was developed for the short, medium and long terms.

2.4.3 Capacity Building Needs Analysis

The identification of the capacity building needs was accomplished by making a systematic analysis of the information gathered through the general survey, especially with regard to difficulties expressed by respondents, and the types and forms of assistance which they needed.

The information gathered from the above-mentioned analysis was used to identify weaknesses and gaps in the existing operating context for consumer protection among the stakeholders in the country.

An index was developed to measure capacity building needs, using an interval scale of 1 to 7. Level 1 is the least priority and level 7 is the highest priority. The Index level was based on the total scores (i.e. the total computed score for all items related to capacity building needs) and the mean for each area of capacity building need. The mean for the total score is called the Index for each item listed in the questionnaire.

The Index was also used to measure the level of difficulty in implementing consumer protection programmes and activities, and the preferred forms of assistance required by the stakeholders for work on consumer protection.

By making reference to a proposed framework for comprehensive consumer protection regime, it was possible to identify capacity building needs that would assist Indonesia to make the transition from the current state to the desired state of consumer protection at the national and regional levels.

2.5 PROFILE OF STAKEHOLDERS

At the national level, stakeholders were identified based on their direct and indirect involvement in consumer protection and the six main sectors that have been specified such as:

- The government entities (the relevant ministries, particularly with relevance to the sector specified, including consumer tribunals and courts;
- Local authorities
- Regional Institutions or inter-government organizations such as ASEAN Secretariat (ASEC) Competition, Consumer Protection, and IPR Division (CCPID), ASEAN Committee on Consumer Protection (ACCP) and SEACC;
- Policy makers (Members of parliament)
- Training Institutes for government officials;
- Industries/business associations;
- National non-governmental organizations (NGOs)/civil society organizations (CSOs) including consumer associations,
- Academic or think-tank institutions such as ASEAN ISIS
- Professional bodies of legal and medical services

Initially, twenty stakeholders were identified and targeted by YLKI as potential respondents of the General Survey (Table 2.3). Subsequently only 11 stakeholders of whom 3 were government organizations, 4 non-governmental organizations and 4 from independent agency or regulatory body completed the Survey, giving the success rate of 55%. (Please see Appendix 1 for List of Stakeholders)

2.5.1 Overview of Consumer Movement

Consumer movement in Indonesia is relatively matured, as the government also dedicates a special function to encourage and support the development consumer-related NGOs. Currently, there are a number of NGOs work and advocate specifically on consumer issues. In this study, the following consumer-based organisations have played key roles in consumer movement in the country, with various programmes and activities, as well as influencing legislative development.

- YLKI
- ICT Watch
- YPKKI / Consumers Protection Organization on Health Sector
- Indonesian Pharmaceutical watch (IPW)
- IESR/Indonesian Energy Sector Reform

YLKI, established in 1973, is the first and the largest consumer organisation in Indonesia. YLKI's main activities include handling of consumer complaints, research, education, publication and providing data and information. Consumer issues handled by YLKI, a member of Consumers International, vary from public utilities (electricity, water, telecommunication), to rights to basic needs such as housing, banking, health, food safety and education. Nowadays, issues relating to trade liberalisation have become increasingly important with an impact on almost all public sectors and on consumers' access. Amongst the campaign tools used by YLKI are advocacy, solidarity, networking and dissemination of independent and balanced information.

2.6 LIMITATIONS

Due to the time constraints, some relevant stakeholders were not able to participate in the general survey (GS), key informant interviews (KIIs) and the roundtable discussion (RTD).

Further, the availability of detailed materials primarily depended on the available resources and publications or reports available through internet search, which would be further limited by availability in English version. Data were also mainly based on secondary compilation by the focal points and Key Informants and general survey respondents, who were selected by the local focal points. However, it was also noted during the course of interviews, the participants might have limited knowledge or experience in answering some of the questions pertinent to areas beyond their scope of functions.

Complete data representation on enforcement was also critically lacking in this report due the absence of participation of enforcement unit or departments. Only small passing reference and general remarks were made by respondents or key informants, without any specific mentioned of or reference materials, cases or statistics provided.

3 MAPPING AND SITUATIONAL ANALYSIS OF CONSUMER PROTECTION LAWS AND PROGRAMMES

3.1 LAWS AND REGULATIONS RELATED TO CONSUMER PROTECTION

In realising the goals and objectives of the ASEAN Economic Blueprint to drive towards a people-centred ASEAN Community, consumer protection is considered an essential means in its market integration agenda.⁴⁶

In mapping the relevant laws, this Study examines specific or general provisions that capture or provide for access, safety, quality, of products and services in relation to the 8 fundamental rights of consumers as per the UN Guidelines (see Chapter 1, Section 1.1), including consumers' and (products and services) providers' responsibilities and obligations. Provisions that imply authorities and their enforcement power are also examined in line with the rights for consumers to seek redress.

An extensive overview on Consumer Protection in Indonesia has been published by MTT⁴⁷. In general, the Constitution of the Republic of Indonesia 1945 has been the basis for all laws in the country. In relation to consumer protection, Article 27(2) of the Constitution specifies that “Every citizen has the right to work and to live in human dignity”, hence consumers should be able to enjoy living environment that allows them the accessibility, affordability and availability of their needs. Article 31(1) states that “Every citizen has the right to education.”, hence is relevant to consumer education. Article 33 exemplifies the basis of economic democracy which envisages prosperity for everybody.

Numerous laws provide for consumer protection in Indonesia in relation to prices, weights and measures, unfair contract terms, travel, second hand goods, credit and banking, utilities, telecommunications, safety and quality, fees and charges etc., which are implemented by various Agencies. (Please see Appendix 4 on List of Laws and Appendix 5 on List of Implementing Agencies).

3.1.1 Principal Consumer Protection Act

Consumer Protection Law No. 8/1999 under the Ministry of Trade and Industry provides extensive provisions on rights of consumers and their obligations, and entrepreneurs' rights and obligation, as well as prohibitions imposed on the entrepreneurs. The Law also provides a specific mechanism, the establishment of the National Consumer Protection Agency whose functions are based on developing and promoting consumer protection efforts in the Indonesia.

⁴⁷ An Overview on Consumer Protection In Indonesia. Directorate of Consumer Protection <http://pkditjenpdn.depdag.go.id/>

The establishment of Consumers Dispute Settlement Body is also among key elements that have been put in place through the Law.

In this study, a general analysis on Law No. 8/1999 on Consumer Protection was made using Wood's (1996) Consumer Laws Matrix (please see Appendix 5), which is based on the parameters of the 8 consumer's rights. The analysis suggests that the Law contains strong provisions protecting consumers of their rights to safety, to be informed, to choose, to redress, and to consumer education. However, provisions relating to protecting consumers of their rights to healthy environment and to the satisfaction of basic needs seem to be lacking, which may need to be addressed through appropriate amendments.

Specifically referring to the Law, Article 1 under Chapter 1 of the Law states that "Consumers protection is all means which guarantee the legal security to protect consumers".

Various clauses on prohibited practices of entrepreneurs are covered under Chapter IV. In relation to labelling of product or services, Article 8 specifies that entrepreneurs are prohibited from producing any products or services that

- Do not conform to the required standards
- Mislead or state false information on product label in terms of weight, volume or amount, sizes or measurement, guarantee, specialty or efficacy; composition or contents, processing or production methods, etc
- Do not state expiry dates
- Do not conform to halal production if halal label is used
- Do not include information or instructions on the use of the products or service.

Article 8 of the Consumer Protection Law No. 8/1999 also specifies that labels of product or services must contain information the name of the product, size/weight, composition, instruction or description of usage, production date, side effect, name and address of manufacturers. As stated in Article 8(j) labels must be in Indonesian language.

Various misleading or deceiving advertising or marketing practices are also covered under Article 11, among others includes claims on standard quality or that there is no hidden effect; cheating whereby the products given or sold to consumers are different than the ones promoted, insufficient quantity, amount, or weight, and hiking the prices before selling the goods on sale. Article 17 also states that entrepreneurs are not allowed to deceive consumers in terms of quality, quantity, ingredients use, guarantee, as well as practices that violate ethics and/or provisions on advertising.

Article 14 of the Consumer Protection Law No. 8/1999 allows trading by giving prizes through lottery. However, entrepreneurs must meet specific requirements such as conduct the draw on the stipulated date, announce the result through mass media, give out the promised prizes and substitute any prizes with equal value with the promised prizes.

Further, under Article 19, entrepreneurs are obliged to provide compensation, in the forms of refund, replacement with equal value, or healthcare or insurance for any damage, foul or losses suffered by consumers due to the products or services within the period of seven days.

Usage of Standard Clauses are also prohibited under Article 18, which includes, among others, transfer of entrepreneur's responsibility, stating entrepreneur's rights to refuse products returned, or their rights to forfeit the use of goods or the benefits of the services purchased or rendered.

National Consumer Protection Agency (NCPA)

The National Consumer Protection Agency (NCPA) is one of the key initiatives of the government to ensure protection of consumers in Indonesia. NCPA acts primarily as an Advisory Body, and under Article 32 of the Consumer Protection Law No. 8/1999, the Agency has a direct role to play to provide any suggestions or recommendations to the President. The other key roles of the Agency includes conduct studies or surveys on impact of policies as well as impact of products or services on consumers, and studies on consumer needs; assist the development of consumers organizations, promote consumer empowerment; and, receive and handle consumer complaints. Article 36 states that the members of the Agency shall be represented by government, entrepreneurs, non-government organizations, academicians and experts.

Consumer Dispute Settlement Body (CDSB)

Article 49 of the Consumer Protection Law No. 8/1999, and further strengthen by the Trade Decree on the Roles and Authority of CDSB, presents another key initiative of the government to provide means for protecting consumers and acquiring redress. The Agency also known as Consumer Protection Settlement Body or CDSB at the Level II Administrative Regions throughout the country, functions to provide a mechanism to settle disputes outside the court system through mediation, arbitration or conciliation. A CDSB consists of serving members include a chairman, a vice chairman and members. Article 55 states that the Board "is obligated to render a decision at least within 21 (twenty one) days after the charge is received". And within seven days, the entrepreneurs are obligated to implement the decision (Article 56). The decision rendered by CDSB is deemed final and binding. However, Article 58 states that any appeal shall be decided upon by the District Court.

Challenges:

- According to WHO⁵⁷, Indonesia's National Drug Policy is out of date, and was written before the decentralization - address the division of roles between the Ministry of Health and the National Agency for Drug and Food Control (earlier, drug and food control was under the MoH, not NA-DFC).

⁵⁷ WHO-Indonesia website <http://www.who.or.id/eng/ourworks.asp?id=ow5>

- The use and prescription of drugs in Indonesia is not always very rational, due to a variety of factors, including lack of awareness and information among prescribers as well as patients.
- Counterfeit medicine is still an issue, apply to both branded and generic products and counterfeit products may include products with the correct ingredients or with the wrong ingredients, without active ingredients, with insufficient active ingredients or with fake packaging.

The Ministry of Health is the key agency in charge and handle specific areas on health and healthcare services as discussed in the above Section. The National Agency for Drug and Food Control is the key agency in implementing food and medicines related laws.

3.1.7 Laws on Professional Services

3.1.7.1 Medical Professionals

Law No. 2g/2004 on Medical Practices is put in place to regulate medical practitioners and specifies rights and obligations of Patient and Medical Practitioners enforced through the Indonesian Honorary Board of Medical Disciplines under the Indonesian Medical Council. Medical Council Regulation No. 1419/2005 on Medical Practices supplement the Law related to practice and relationship between patient and medical doctor/dentist.

Consumers expectation related to professional services from doctors include:

- Responsiveness: capacity to provide unprejudiced assistance and services, regardless of race, religion, or economic background
- Assurance: of quality, safety, and security
- Empathy: capacity to communicate and understand consumer needs. Generally, consumers in Indonesia perceive doctors, as well as lawyers, in Indonesia as “unapproachable” associated with some form of superiority complex in the context of societal integration.

3.1.7.2 Legal Professionals

Law No. 18/2003 concerning Advocates was the first advocate law enacted in Indonesia, which regulates the qualification for and practices of advocates. The Law defines “Advocate” as a person with a profession to provide legal services, either inside or outside the court and has met the requirements set forth in this law (Article 1).

diminish his / her independence and freedom as an advocate in performing his / her duties and responsibilities. It is clearly stipulated in the Law on Advocate that if an advocate accepts a state office appointment or alike and becomes one, he /she must not go on practice and shall not be permitted to practice as an advocate until the time he / she resigns from such appointment.

Article 19 of the Law specifically states that:

“(1) Every Advocate shall maintain the confidentiality of all matters that come to his/ her knowledge or which are informed to him/ her by his/ her Client based on his/ her professional relationship, save where otherwise provided by this Law”

(2) “An Advocate has the right to keep confidential anything pertaining to his/ her relation with his/ her client, including the protection of his/ her files or documents from confiscation, investigation and from taping of the Advocate’s electronic communication”.

Article 3 of Law No 18/2003 stipulates the requirements to be an “appointed advocate” in Indonesia which include:

- i. Indonesian Citizen;
- ii. Residing in Indonesia;
- iii. Is not as civil servant/ government officials;
- iv. Aged at least 25 (twenty five) years;
- v. Holding a bachelor’s degree in Law and certificate of practice
- vi. Has passed the examination held by an association of advocates

Foreign lawyers or advocates are permitted under Article 23 of Law No. 18/2003 on Advocates (“Advocate Law”) to practice in Indonesia. Specifically, Article 23 (1) states that a foreign advocate is not allowed to appear in or address the court, practice or establish an office or its branch in Indonesia.

Indonesian advocates have serious ethical and legal obligations to their clients. The Code specifically governs the advocate’s duties to his/her client (Article 4), which, among others, include:

- Presenting a peaceful workable resolution
- Maintaining the confidentiality of all matters informed by a client, even after advocate-client relationship comes to an end.
- Should oblige to refuse cases that lack legal ground;
- Not providing misleading information to a client in respect of the case.
- Not promising any guarantee for successful outcome to a client.
- Not imposing on client with a burden of unnecessary expenses and costs.

3.3.7.3 Implementing Agencies

The Ministry of Health is the key agency in charge and handle specific areas related to Medical Professional services and the Ministry of Justice and Human Rights is the key agency in charge and handle specific areas related to Legal Professional services as discussed in the above Section.

3.1.8 Other Laws Protecting Rights of Consumers

Law No. 2/1981 on Legal Metrology related to measurements: weight, length, etc. The Law also describes prohibited practices. Further, Minister of Trade Regulation No. 08/M-DAG/Per/3/2010 regarding Measurement tools, Weight, Length, and Measuring Equipment that are mandatory to be validated and revalidated.

Law No. 5/1999 concerning Prohibition of Monopolistic Practices and Unfair Business Competition is put in place to enhance healthy competition to provide consumer with wider choices, through elimination of market control by certain groups. Article (1) describes the nature of monopolistic practices as "...the control of production and/or marketing of certain goods and/or use of services by one entrepreneur or a group of entrepreneurs," and "...the centralization of economic power by one or more entrepreneurs causing the control of production and/or marketing of certain goods and/or services, resulting in an unfair business competition and can cause damage to the public interests." Article 6 states that "Entrepreneurs are prohibited from making contracts which cause buyers to pay a different price from the price that must be paid by other buyers for the same type of goods and/or services."

Law No. 14/2008 on Public Information Disclosure strengthens the rights of consumers to access information and rights for representation in public policy making processes. Article 3 states the main objectives of the Law, which include⁵⁸:

- to secure the right of the citizens to know the plan and the reason to make public policies, programs, and the public decision-making process;
- to encourage the participation of the community in the policy-making process
- to increase the active role of the citizens in making public policies and in managing Public Agencies properly;
- to achieve good governance, through transparent, effective and efficient, accountable and responsible manner;
- to understand the rationale of a public policy and its impact on the life of the people;

3.2 INTER-AGENCY COORDINATION

National Consumer Protection Agency plays an active role in promoting inter-agency coordination among the various stakeholders to enhance consumer protection in the country. Some examples coordination among relevant authorities, national consumer protection authority and consumer organisations cited in the GS, or during the KII and RTD includes:

⁵⁸ Extracted from "Access to Information Laws: Overview and Statutory Goals". <http://right2info.org/access-to-information-laws>

- Working Group on Toys
- Task Force (Based on issue) e.g. Task Force on Advertisements Monitoring
- Task Force on Monitoring Telecommunication
- Bank Indonesia's Consumer Education Committee
- Task Force on Developing Guidelines

3.3 REDRESS MECHANISMS

Law No. 30/1999 on ADR & Arbitration, which was promulgated in 1999, provides the rules for ADR (consensually based dispute settlement) and arbitration. Article 2 of the Law describes the scope of application of the Law that applies for disputes settlement that is predetermined by parties in the agreement/contract. The use of arbitration in the administrative type ADR such as in the labour, environment and consumer protection dispute settlement are also prescribed in the Law No. 30/1999.

In Indonesia, generally, ADR is interpreted as alternative to adjudication as it is reflected in the title of the Law No. 30/1999 which separates ADR⁵⁹ and arbitration. Indonesia has been practicing four main types of ADR, namely:⁶⁰

1. Judicial Type ADR (Court Connected ADR)
2. Administrative Type ADR
3. Private Sector Type ADR
4. Traditional Type ADR

In the issue of environment, ADR has also been recognized as an important element of environmental dispute resolution. Article 30-33 of Law No. 23/1997 on Environmental Management introduces mediation and arbitration as means to settling environmental disputes. Government Regulation No. 54/2000 as implementing regulation of article 30-33 of Law No. 23/1997 establishes Environmental Dispute Settlement Service Provider in national as well as provincial/district levels facilitated by Ministry of Environment (MoE) in the national level, and Local Environmental Protection Office in the province and district levels. This service provider provides mediation and arbitration services which are carried out by mediators/arbitrators from government and private/community members.

According to Mas Achmad Santosa (2002), the MoE has established the National Environmental Dispute Settlement Service Provider (NEDSBSP) in 2002. However, there were no cases mediated or arbitrated reported at the point of the publication. The dysfunctional of the NEDSBSP was then attributed to some factors among others:

- (1) low public awareness about the existence and function of the NEDSBSP;

⁵⁹ ADR includes negotiation, mediation, conciliation, early neutral evaluation and other hybrid type of ADR.

⁶⁰ Extracted from Mas Achmad Santosa (2002)

- (2) lack of motivation or sense of urgency to abide or to adhere especially among powerful corporations to settle their disputes through mediation as they are not threatened by enforcement actions;
- (3) lack of proper public complaint procedures and mechanisms for environmental cases to be settled through ADR.

The Law on Consumer Protection (Law No. 8/1999) introduces Consumer Dispute Settlement Body (Badan Penyelesaian Sengketa Konsumen), or CDSB, is established by government in each district level for the purpose to serve out court settlement through mediation. CDSB is a non structural institution having the function of “setting consumer dispute outside the court cheaply and simple in short of time.” It takes the position in all regencies and cities through out Indonesia.

Two types of ADR exist in private sector

(1) business association type - established, attached or facilitated by business association such as Indonesian National Arbitration Body which was established by the Indonesian Chamber of Commerce & Industry.

(2) independent type - by independent organization such as the Indonesian Institute Conflict Transformation which was established in 2001 (which and non-government organization working with public on case settlement, dispute system design and capacity building works); also the National Mediation Centre which provides the mediation service of private and commercial cases.

Further, the Supreme Court Regulation No. 2 / 2003 concerning Mediation Procedures Within the Court states that

- Mediation is mandatory for parties in dispute and handling judges;
- Parties in disputes can select listed mediator(s) or outside mediator
- Code of Conduct developed by the Supreme Court is a basis for mediator to conduct his/her tasks;

This project also uncovers that a significant majority of the stakeholders 8 (72.8%) handle consumer complaints, which also involves mediation and arbitration in the case of 6 (54.5%) of stakeholders.

Agencies or Organizations involved in complaints handling:

- YLKI received 40 – 60 complaints monthly.
- Telecommunication Regulatory Authority has a complaint centre to receive the complaints from the public. Indonesian Telecommunications Regulatory Authority-Telecommunication Complaint Centre 10-20 complaints received Telecommunication Complaint Centre-receive complaint, verification, clarification Telephone; Mail/letters; Email
- Sub Directorate of Consumer protection, Directorate of Electricity, Ministry of Energy and Mineral Resources – on electricity

Challenges

Dispute settlement mechanisms for matters related to banking lies mainly on the onus of the banks to provide settlements. In some case, whereby banks are unsuccessful to settle through its mediation procedures, government (Bank Indonesia) would take over, and often settle on behalf of the bank. Further actions or sanctions or reimbursement may not be imposed on the bank. Consumer organization suggests that industry (private banks) should be made accountable for any cost incurred by BI (using public fund) to settle their cases.

3.4 CONSUMER PROTECTION PROGRAMMES, INITIATIVES AND BEST PRACTICES

3.4.1 Programmes and Initiatives

Important initiatives by the government and the society in general have been the conscious efforts in establishing:

- National Consumer Protection Agency (an independent advisory body).
- Consumer Disputes Settlement Body
- Development of Consumer Disputes Settlement Body throughout the country to ensure access to redress.
- Development of consumer organizations such as YLKI.

3.4.2 Best Practices

Identification of best practices in Consumer protection program implementation is generally made based on the following criteria.

- i. there is continuity and replicability, and follow-up, with regular reporting and updates (each time the program is conducted)
- ii. meets the objectives and targets of the program
- iii. program is evaluated by participants
- iv. documentation of the program's effects
- v. reaches out to target groups as expected or beyond.

3.4.2.10 Other Best Practices to be explored by the Indonesia's Stakeholders

During the course of KIIs and RTD, recommendations were also made by the participating stakeholders to emulate or study other specific programs or initiatives carried out in other countries that might be relevant to Indonesia. These include:

- Malaysia's "Discount " guidelines (the Retails Associations)
- FOMCA HPM / 3K Programs on nation-wide consumer education and awareness (NCPA)
- Singapore – Tourist complaints handling (Directorate for Consumer Protection)
- MOU FOMCA and CASE to facilitate cross-border redress
- Tribunal for Small Claims-Malaysia
- Australian Consumer Protection Agency on Competition
- Australian Prudential Regulation Authority

- Insurance Organization of Indonesia to study mechanism for identification of certified agents offering or issuing credit cards, to reduce fraud and counterfeit problems (AKKI)

3.5 CHALLENGES RELATED TO IMPLEMENTATION OF CONSUMER PROTECTION

From the General Survey conducted, two challenges were reflected:

- Many products in domestic market are still under standard, and there is insufficient fund for product testing
- The weakness in CDSB and Banking Mediation in giving final ruling, since its approach is mainly mediating

Others that were highlighted include:

- Lack of accountability and capacity for most of entrepreneurs to adopt the principles and concepts of consumer protection
- Difficulties in enforcing laws
- Lack of trained, experienced and qualified personnel (for example, a mediator should have a basic law degree)
- Absence of initiatives or programs that could help enhance consumer protection such as a credit counselling and management agency, and hospital accreditation program to enhance assurance of quality services

4. NEEDS ASSESSMENT FOR CONSUMER PROTECTION

4.1 ANALYSIS OF SYSTEM, INSTITUTIONAL AND HUMAN RESOURCE CAPACITY GAPS

The analysis on human and institutional capacity gaps was carried based on the General Survey completed by a total of 11 stakeholders in Indonesia that were specifically identified, based on their involvement in consumer protection and specific consumer areas.

Five (45%) of the stakeholders participated in the General Survey reported that they have divisions/department/unit with assigned staff with technical capacity for consumer protection. In addition, 4 (36.4%) of the stakeholders reported that they did not have a specific unit, but, have assigned technical staff for consumer protection.

From the General Survey, it was also found that nine (81.8%) of the stakeholders employed full time paid staff while three stakeholders had part time paid staff. Two (18.2%) of the stakeholders had the services of paid volunteers and three (27.3%) used consultants. All the stakeholders use Bahasa Indonesia for their day to day operations. All stakeholders have the capacity to perform reviews on and monitor relevant legislation.

Five (45%) of stakeholders also have the capacity to provide training and carry out R&D. WALHI and ICT Watch also have the capacity to mobilize citizens and carry out campaigns for particular issues.

Government, NGOs and other agencies utilized wide range of printed and popular education materials for consumer programs. CDSB also uses posters and leaflets were successful in informing the public about the existence of the redress facility. However, government agencies and NGOs did not indicate whether their materials were effective in raising consumer awareness. Some of the stakeholders also have the relevant capacity to develop, promote and monitor Standards. The Ministry of Environment is involved in the development of eco-labelling for products. Jakarta Water Supply Regulatory Body has carried out the programs stated as 'Standards Course Development' such as the cost of water production according to standards. YLKI also has the capacity to conduct product testing on contamination of drinking water and heavy metals in cosmetics.

However, most stakeholders are not aware of any particular codes of conducts to promote ethical businesses. Six out of the 11 stakeholders are not aware about the price control mechanisms for essential goods and services.

Based on the General Survey conducted, it was found that all stakeholders are aware of principle Consumer Protection Law. YLKI and Indonesia Medical Council, in particular, were found to have high needs for capacity building assistance in

- Monitoring and enforcement of laws on professional services,
- monitoring compliance of codes of conducts related to legal and medical professions,

- best practices in redress mechanism for medico-legal cases,
- establishing institutional structures for consumer protection and professional services

More than half of the stakeholders participated in the GS reported facing a medium level of difficulty in implementing consumer protection activities and programs. Among the difficulties they face are:

- Inadequate laws
- Inadequate qualified and experienced Staff
- Inadequate number of staff
- Inadequate finances
- Inadequate access to training

From the General Survey, Key Informant Interviews and roundtable discussions, there are specific issues related to the above difficulties.

4.1.1 Laws

Due to evolving consumer needs and business natures, there is a need to amendment or review certain provisions under the Consumer Protection Law. NCPA is studying the possibility of having separate consumer protection laws for goods and services as they may be some differences in manners how they affect consumers and how they are used by consumers. NCPA is also looking at the possibility of amending the definition of “consumers”. In the current Consumer Protection Law, Article 1(2) “Consumer is each individual user of goods and/or services available in society, for the benefit of them-selves, family members, other people, and other living creatures and which are not for trading”. The term “and which are not for trading” is the area of concern in the application of businesses as “consumers”.

In order to increase efficiency in dispute settlement mechanisms to reach wider coverage areas and to enhance accessibility of consumers to redress, the Ministry of Trade and Industry is looking into revising the Law to ensure that CDSB is established in every district, through the empowerment of Governors or local governments.

Others areas of regulations or rules that are suggested relevant to Indonesia to ensure enhance consumer protection includes:

- Cigarette or tobacco regulations – to control or prohibit marketing of cigarette or tobacco to minors, revise Health Law on the missing provision on Tobacco⁶¹
- Cyber Law
- Law on Cross-border transactions and redress

4.1.2 Experienced and Qualified Staff

In efforts to increase the current number of CDSB in the country, Directorate of Consumer Empowerment would need experience and skills personnel in each district, who should at least hold a Law degree and have people-skills to deals with consumers and entrepreneurs. MTI is aiming at establishing five CDSB per year to have establishments of about 400 CDSB to be placed in every district throughout the country.

In health sector, certified and qualified health staffs are still low, particularly in dealing with cases or issues related to women and children. Yayasan Kesehatan Perempuan suggested that qualified doctors or licensed medical practitioners should perform all surgical procedures, whether major or minor, particularly abortion⁶², due to critical practices of unsafe abortion⁶³. Currently, due to the sensitivity of issues surrounding family planning and religion, women often resorted to unlicensed practitioners. The National Commission for Child Protection (NCCP) also requires staff with experience related consumer protection and children. In order to provide better service, the Commission would like to have qualified staff to mend specific “Desk” functions such as “Desk of Tobacco Impact” or “Desk of Toy Safety” and have the necessary experience and skills to deal with children and children’s issues.

4.1.3 Finances

Lack of finances is commonly reported. Directorate of Consumer Empowerment has very small budget to conduct consumer education programs. Nonetheless, with the small budget most stakeholders are still able to carry out certain number of programs. Limited budget also hampers the capacity to acquire skilled and experienced personnel, as well as other expert services.

4.1.4 Access to Training

Access to training or capacity building is also limited by the capacity to pay for the services or to attend training if they are conducted outside their location that requires coverage of transport, accommodation, etc. In addition, knowledge and awareness on types and providers of training or programs related to their areas of work is also limited.

4.1.5 Access to Experts

The National Commission for Child Protection requires researchers and experts to provide professionals inputs and research capacities to look into issues and produce scientific or technical papers related to children (minors), consumer behaviour, products and the impact of policy directions on children or other vulnerable groups. Apart from the limited finances, NCCP also needs to develop collaborative works with researchers. Currently, NCCP is unaware of any researchers or experts in the country or within the region who can conduct technical study on impact of products and services on children of Indonesia.

4.1.6 Inter-Agency Coordination

Interestingly, YLKI and WALHI do not seem to hold joint consumer activities with local authorities or government. There is also a need for Indonesian Family Planning Association,

⁶² May also be found among married women due to poverty, unplanned pregnancy, timing and career conflicts; others may also be due to rape, incest, health complications.

⁶³ May be related to unqualified practitioners, or improper equipment or medical devices.

Ministry of Health and Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection to enhance their cooperation to ensure protection of women and children.

4.2 CAPACITY BUILDING NEEDS AND STRATEGIC THRUSTS

Based on the data obtained from the GS Questionnaire, majority of the stakeholders was found to have a medium or moderate level of difficulties in implementing consumer protection activities and programs. Six main constraints were identified as the potential areas for capacity building needs in CP in Indonesia as discussed in Section 4.1.

Generally, the CBN of stakeholders in Indonesia could be categorised into 4 strategic thrust areas as:

- Laws and programmes on CP
- Enforcement
- Redress mechanisms
- Implementing agencies on CP

Thus, specific needs highlighted for capacity building in consumer protection from the GS were further supported and verified through Key Informant Interviews.

4.2.1 Laws and Programmes on CP

- Developing the National Consumer Protection Policy, and other appropriate laws, policies and programs in relevant areas of work for consumer protection
- Developing strategic plans(master plan) for consumer protection
- Implementing Good standard development practices related to quality and safety standards
- Implementation and evaluation of consumer protection programs (e.g. price monitoring and market surveillance)
- Research on existing consumer protection laws to cover emerging issues
- Awareness and educational programs
- Consumer issues impacting on women

4.2.2 Enforcement

Enforcement of Consumer Protection in Indonesia takes effect in two main forms:⁶⁴

- Social Enforcement
 - Conception of consumer protection rules and regulation, especially law enforcement provision;
 - the Society (consumer, entrepreneur, and law enforcement officers) through education;
 - socialization and Publication;
- Law Enforcement

⁶⁴ Based on information published by the Ministry of Trade and Industry

- Market surveillance and inspection of goods and services;
- Preparation of consumer protection law enforcement officers;
- Facilitation of consumer's complaints (through mediation and conciliation);
- Enhancement of CDSB;
- Case analysis and settlement.

Capacity building for enforcement be provided in these areas:

- Best practice for enforcing laws/codes of conducts that protect consumers
- Monitoring compliance to laws/codes of conduct
- Information technology management
- Good standard development practices related to quality and safety standards
- Training enforcement staff on consumer issues (e.g. identification of fraud, counterfeit products, fair trade laws, price fixing, E-commerce etc.)

4.2.3 Redress Mechanism

- Enhance development of CDSB and civil society organisations
- Enhance effective redress mechanisms among industry players
- Information technology management for complaint handling

4.2.4 Implementing Agencies on CP

- Developing Management and Leadership skills and knowledge in all relevant agencies on CP and consumer issues
- Training and exposing all relevant agencies' staff on consumer issues (e.g. identification of fraud, counterfeit products, fair trade laws, price fixing, E-commerce etc.)

4.2.4.1 ACCP focal point

The Directorate of Consumer Empowerment, as Indonesia's focal points for ACCP, plays vital role in moving the CP agenda forward in the country. Along with the ASEAN Secretariat (CCPID) to:

- 1) Enhance role of ACCP as a platform for encourage exchange of information and evaluation mechanisms
- 2) Continue and further enhance the capacity of ASEC to provide inputs and share information from other platforms for ACCP to carry out their working group activities
- 3) Provide training or study visits on mediation, and dispute settlement mechanism study visit
- 4) Establish Specific Platform for addressing "Children as Consumers" at domestic and regional level
- 5) Develop specific programs or initiatives to address issues related to children being targeted for products or marketing or advertising, (such as cigarettes, toys, junk food, fast food, pornography)

- 6) Enhance capacity of AMSs to adopt specific recognition nationally and regionally on the rights of children as consumers
- 7) Enhance promotion and adoption of ISO26000 among all entrepreneurs
- 8) Establish collaboration with experts for research on impact of products on children
- 9) Develop ASEAN Code of Conduct for marketing to children
- 10) Enhance understanding of stakeholders in AMSs on ASEAN initiatives such as the ASEAN Multi-Sectoral Framework on Climate Change and Food Security (AFCC), Sustainable Forest Management (SFM).
- 11) Enhance capacity of ASEAN in providing space for NGO's to voice out in ASEAN – A common forum by ASEAN with NGO on Consumer Protection

4.2.4.2 Inter-agency coordination

In order to enhance inter-agency coordination to promote CP, Indonesia would need to look into:

- Enhancing the role of NCPA to implement and coordinate consumer protection agenda
- Establishing legal and institutional mechanisms for consumer representation within the various agencies and authorities
- Increased participation of consumer-based NGO to be part of Working Groups, Technical Committee or Task Force
- Continue to develop consumer organizations (government linked agencies, NGOs, independent)

4.2.4.3 Other stakeholders

Generally, in order to overcome the challenges in consumer protection implementation in Indonesia, all stakeholders participated in this project require assistance in the areas as mentioned in Section 4.2.1 to Section 4.2.4.

4.2.5 Forms of Assistance

The following types of assistance were most commonly preferred by the stakeholders in Indonesia (in the order of most preferred)

- 1) Training on consumer specific area
- 2) Twinning or partnership with agencies or institutions within ASEAN
- 3) Training on management/leadership
- 4) Staff exchanges/Secondment
- 5) Training on fund-raising
- 6) Experts
- 7) Study and exposure visits
- 8) Certified programs on consumer studies (Diploma, Degree)
- 9) Networking assistance
- 10) Seminars/Workshops/Forum/Symposium
- 11) Internship

5. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR CAPACITY BUILDING ON CONSUMER PROTECTION

5.1 CAPACITY BUILDING ROADMAP AND IMPLEMENTATION PLAN

To further enhance the development of ASEAN Economic Community and regional market integration, effective channelling of resources and efforts for the increased capacity building needs in CP, through the ACCP focal points, is vital in order to continuously ensure tangible outcomes of consumer protection in nationally and in the ASEAN region.

With reference to the national Implementation Plan (Table 5.1), the roadmap for capacity building in consumer protection for Indonesia focuses on two main thrusts:

1. Advancing and Prioritizing Consumer Protection through the Directorate of Consumer Empowerment.
2. Promoting Consumer Protection Agenda through all relevant stakeholders.

1. Advancing Consumer Protection through the Directorate of Consumer Empowerment

Strategic Objective: Enhancing the relevance of the Consumer Protection Law and its Implementation Plan

Action

- i) Enhance capacity of Directorate of Consumer Empowerment to review, study and amend Consumer Protection Law
 - On the implication of having separate Consumer Protection Law for “goods” and “services”
 - Re-Defining the term of “Consumers”
 - CDSB (role of central government and provincial governments)
 - Decentralization of CDSB – to change centralized to decentralized type of government, which provide regional autonomy to provide access to consumer redress in every district
- ii) Enhance implementing capacity of NCPA – Currently, recommendations made to the President by NCPA is not necessarily implemented at ministerial levels. NCPA is currently playing more consumer education than policy recommendations.

2. Promoting Consumer Protection Agenda through all Relevant Stakeholders

Action

- i) Enhance the capacity to establish more CDSB throughout the country (currently at 54 to ~400, at 4 CDSB per year)
- ii) Enhance the capacity of DCP to activate non-active non-government foundations and establish new ones to help support DCP’s activities and programs

5.2 PRIORITISATION OF STRATEGIES AND FOCUS AREAS

At present, there is a strong realization for the needs of consumer protection in Indonesia due to the robust market integration and market competition domestically, regionally and internationally, as well as due to the more demanding and sophisticated consumer needs.

During the ACCP Workshop (2010), the Indonesia's ACCP focal points⁶⁶ identified five immediate focus areas to be considered for capacity building on consumer protection. These five areas are (in the order of priority):

1. To review the "White Paper" (Kertas Putih) related to Consumer Policy, which is to be carried within 2011
2. To study and break down consumer protection areas under contained under the 5-year Strategy Plan. In particular, to carry out activities identified in each relevant Milestone, such as to achieve a target of five CDSB establishments per year; to generate five regulations or standards or relevant policies per year; to conduct a certain targeted number education and training programs or forum per year.
3. To carry out necessary amendments on the CPA, which is an ongoing process, and being tabled in the parliament. This activity also linked to the ongoing process of mapping regulatory agencies.
4. To develop a national database on consumer complaints, which linked to various regulatory and enforcement agencies, independent consumer complaints centres and CDSB. In addition, to develop and maintain interactive and up-to-date national website, with links to key agencies on consumer pro enhancing infrastructural development for CP, including establishment of a Price Control Council, which is already specified under the Price Control Law, along with enhancing leadership and management capacities and knowledge on CP among senior ministers; as well as emulating public-private partnership and NGO development as carried out in Malaysia.
5. Enhancing enforcement capacities of relevant regulatory agencies through centralized coordination, and improving the redress mechanisms, emulating examples of best practices such as the Consumer Claims Tribunal of Malaysia.

As described in Chapter 4, the constraints in implementing consumer protection in Indonesia are related to:

- a. Inadequate laws for CP due to the gaps in the existing laws.
- b. Inadequate number of qualified and experienced staff.
- c. Budget constraints.
- d. Limited access to trainings.
- e. Limited access to expert.
- f. Lack of coordination among related institutions.

⁶⁶ Identified during the ACCP Workshop on 30 November – 1 December 2010 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

As such, the capacity building would focus not only on the imperfect actual operating context (AOC) or system which includes not only the legal instruments but also aspects of law enforcement and the limited institutional infrastructure for consumer protection, that are yet to be optimized to handle issues of consumer protection in both central and provinces in the country.⁶⁷

Meanwhile the limited access to trainings and to experts on consumer protection has been a constraint to implement consumer protection in Indonesia. This constraint, however, could be overcome by adopting and adjusting the existing training programs to the current condition in Indonesia. Additionally, training programs could be organised by inviting experts from overseas to guide and train the human resources on consumer protection in Indonesia and sending potential staff to participate in domestic and overseas trainings.⁶⁸

Table 5.2 summarizes the prioritization of strategies for the emerging scenario for consumer protection in Indonesia is rated as high, medium or low and is examined based on the following criteria, which are also primarily based on the responses and suggestions obtained during the key informant interviews:

- Urgency: this is a priority issue that needs to be addressed in the next 1-3 years, based on the suggestions received during the key informant interviews, as matters related to ongoing or current intentions and actions.
- Potential Impact: Addressing this critical issue will likely have a significant impact on one or more specific populations. There is also reason to believe this can successfully address consumer protection issue.
- Actionable/Feasible: there are opportunities for action to address the critical issue related to consumer protection. There is also room to make meaningful improvement on the issue.
- Resources: Resources (funds, staff, and expertise) are either readily available or likely resources can be obtained to address the critical issue. Resources may be obtainable through the state and community members to work on the issue. Or resources can be acquired elsewhere.
- Community Readiness: A critical issue identified as important by the community. People in the community are interested in the issue. There is community momentum to move this initiative forward.
- Integration: There is opportunity for collaboration. There is opportunity to build on existing initiatives. There is a tendency to duplicate efforts.

6. CONCLUSION

In order to further enhance Consumer Protection in Indonesia through Strategic Objective 1: Enhancing the relevance of the Consumer Protection Law and its Implementation Plan, the current Consumer Protection Law needs to be reviewed due to the complexities that exist, not only due to market diversity of products and services, but also the complexities of consumer issues and needs. The unique culture and religious, an extensive use of the national language (Bahasa Indonesia) in the country, particularly in institutional operation suggested language should be considered when providing assistance or materials for capacity building. In addition, to ensure effective implementation of ADR in Indonesia, the presence of strong law enforcement (non discriminative, swift & sure law enforcement, needs to be supported).

Other capacity building recommendations for the government of Indonesia and ASEAN to consider are to:

- Provide technical support to advance the Consumer protection Law and policy in Indonesia
- Support funding through fund raising mechanism, or collaborations
- Provide technical support to enhance capacity of NCPA and Banking Mediation to make decision and award.
- Provide technical support to conduct policy study on how fines money can be used for consumer education
- Provide support to DCP to enhance development of Consumers Associations
- Improve awareness and knowledge of consumers on rational and appropriate use and prescription of drugs
- Support training programs for enhance skills, knowledge and experience of staff in areas needed, particularly in for CDSB
- Support capacity to understand and manage environmental risk factors
- Support the collection of information to estimate the health status of the population of Indonesia.

At the regional level

- Enhance the initiative to establish a Consumer Protection Agency at the ASEAN level
- Enhance capacity of AMSs to adopt agenda on “Children as Consumers”
- Enhance and support bilateral MOUs between consumer organizations for cross border complaints handling (e.g. CASE and Consumer Coordination Council India and China Consumer Association)
- Support the development of ASEAN Trust Marks
